VOL. XII—NO. 3710. NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, AUGUST 14, 1863. PRICE THREE CENTS

THE SIEGE OF CHARLESTON.

Arrival of the Arago, with Advices to the 10th.

The Grand Assault Expected to be Made Yesterday.

Reports of a Deserter from Fort Wagner.

Guns Removed from Fort Sumter to James Island.

The Fall of Sumter Regarded as a Certainty.

Great Improvement in the Health of Our Troops.

The transport steamer Arago, from Port Royal on the morning of the 10th inst., and Charleston Bar at 8 P. M. of the same day, arrived here yesterday morning.

The Arago brings the usual mails and a large number of passengers. The One Hundred and Seventy-sixth regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, (600 strong,) Col. SECHLER, whose term of service has expired, are on board.

The following brief letter gives the very latest news regarding the progress of the siege of Charleston:

CHARLESTON BAR, Monday, Aug. 10—5 P. M.

Gen. GILLMORE has notified Admiral DAHLGREN that he will be in readiness to open the grand assault on Thursday, the 13th inst.

The navy is all ready, waiting for the army, so that the fight, it is believed, will commence on that day.

The greatest confidence is felt as to the result.

The fall of Forts Sumter, Wagner and Cummings Point is regarded as certain to take place in from two to six hours after the ball opens.

A deserter from Fort Wagner says that two-thirds of the guns have been removed from Fort Sumter and mounted on James Island, and that the fall of Sumter is regarded by the rebels as a certainty, the damage done by the Monitors in April last rendering the possibility of the rebels holding it not to be thought of.

The deserter says that Sumter was on the point of surrendering at that time, when, fortunately for the rebels, the Monitors withdrew.

We have shelling night and day. Fort Johnson keeps up a brisk fire, and our wooden gunboats go in every day, and amuse themselves by shelling them.

At night the rebels shell our land batteries, and we shell them in return.

On Sunday next we will certainly hold Sumter, and within a few days after Charleston or its ruins will be in our possession.

Two more mortar schooners, making five in all, and the wooden gunboats are stripping for the fight.

The weather continues delightful, though there is great suffering for ice, lemons and sugar. Cannot Boston, New-York or Philadelphia send some cargoes here for the use of the gallant sailors and soldiers.

As the Arago leaves, the Ottawa, Marblehead, Seneca and Ironsides are engaged shelling the Cummings Point battery?

ANOTHER REPORT.

Purser GRATJEAN, of the Arago, informs us that the siege of Morris Island was progressing favorably up to the 10th inst., at which time the Arago left Charleston Bar. Our losses were very trifling, not exceeding three or four casualties per day. The final attack was not far distant. All our officers were confident of success. Daily firing took place from both sides. At the time of sailing, at 8 P. M. on the 10th, the gunboat Ottawa was shelling Cummings Point.

The bark Faith, from Philadelphia, coal-loaded, went ashore at Port Royal Bar, 3d inst., and bilged. She will prove a total loss.

We are again indebted to Mr. GRATJEAN for the prompt delivery of our correspondence and for other facilities.

PROGRESS OF THE SIEGE OPERATIONS.

No Important Movements—The Rebel Works—Health of the Troops.

From Our Own Correspondent.

MORRIS ISLAND, S. C., Saturday, Aug. 8, 1863.

The siege of Fort Wagner is still progressing, and thus far without any serious encounters between the opposing forces since the memorable 18th. The enemy sends his missiles at intervals during the day and night from Forts Sumter, Gregg and Johnson, but has succeeded in causing very little injury to the Union troops. If anything, the rebels appear to have tired of that sort of pastime within the past two or three days, as it is noticed they do not fire so often as they did a week ago. Probably they are suspicious that they have been wasting ammunition, and are now content to wait until the proper moment arrives. As a general thing, we do not respond.

Fort Wagner is already about non est. At any rate, it is impossible for that work to use its guns to any advantage, in consequence of the expertness of our sharpshooters, who are ready to pick off the first rebel that shows his head above the fortifications. By this means it may be safely said that Fort Wagner is entirely at our mercy. When the Union forces first arrived on the island, the guns of Fort Wagner were trained on the beach, so as to sweep its entire length, and in fact it was rendered anything but an agreeable promenade at that time. But now the soldiers can walk on the beach with impunity to within a mile and a half of Fort Wagner, not fearing any trouble from the guns of that work.

Fort Gregg, otherwise known as the Cummings Point Battery, is completely out of the question at present. The special points of interest are Forts Sumter, Johnson and, as before intimated, Fort Wagner. Let those forts be reduced, and the land forces will have achieved all that can be required of them in their present situation. The iron-clads must do the rest in the reduction of Charleston. Fort Moultrie occasionally throws a shell, but for what purpose it is difficult to conceive, as the projectile invariably falls in the water without causing the slightest damage to any Union material.

Of the health of the Union troops, it may be said that they are comparatively in a good condition. The cases of sickness have been greatly reduced during the past ten days, and the probability is, that in the course of another week the sick list will be very small. Those who are sick have the best of treatment and attention, being immediately conveyed to Hilton Head, where accommodations have been provided for them. As yet there have been no signs of the yellow fever or any other epidemic, and such is not apprehended on the island this season. A few cases occurred last year at Hilton Head, but such sanitary measures have been taken as, it is believed, will prevent a return of that class of disease this Summer. On Morris Island not a tree or a shrub is to be found. The only thing that approaches vegetation, even in its simplest form, is a kind of rank grass which is discovered in certain spots, like the oasis in the desert. This absence of vegetation is believed to have a salutary effect on the health of the soldiers. As would be naturally supposed, the climate here is excessively warm, especially in early morning. At about 10 or 11 A. M. we have a fresh sea breeze, which continues for the remainder of the day and long into the night. Within the past six days 400 men have been sent from the hospitals to their regiments. In fact, one or two hospitals have been broken up entirely.

It must not be supposed that Morris Island is a level plain of sand. There can be no doubt about the sand, but the island is by no means free from hills and low bluffs, especially on the lower or southern end. These bluffs extend about one and a half miles parallel with the island, or to the look-out tower. Beyond that point, the country is comparatively even, but abounds with marshes. From the peculiar shape of the Island and the contracted limits which can be occupied, it is impossible to concentrate upon it a very heavy number of men. Notwithstanding this, however, it is thought we have troops enough to accomplish the object intended.

It will not be a matter of news to state that work is being vigorously prosecuted on the trenches and parallels. The nature of the next conflict can be easily surmised. It will be, for the most part, an artillery duel.

Lighthouse Inlet has certainly become a famous harbor on the Carolina coast. The rebels, in looking from their observatory just below Fort Johnson, cannot be otherwise then astonished to witness the fleet of vessels of various kinds that are constantly anchored at that point. Perhaps they also witness with feelings of regret the wreck of the impudent Ruby which was driven on the beach by the blockaders while attempting to run the gauntlet with a contraband cargo, up Lighthouse Creek. Communication between Morris and Folly Islands is kept up by means of a small steamer which hourly plys back and forth. In addition to the steamer, a dozen or more rowboats are always on one or the other shore, so there is never a lack of transportation.

It is rather singular that while we are only within three days' easy transportation distance of New-York, yet we have scarcely any vegetables among the troops. It would seem that the Government would comprehend the great importance of that species of diet at this particular time, and send, without delay, a sufficient quantity to supply the whole Department. The plan of feeding fighting men on fresh or salt beef and hard biscuit, simply, has been effectually tried and found to be a failure. Thanks to the United States Sanitary Commission, the needful subsistence has, in a measure, been supplied; but it cannot be expected this valuable institution—which was organized more especially for the benefit of the sick and wounded—can be able to furnish all the troops on the island with rations.

A flag of truce was sent to Fort Wagner yesterday, but no reply has been received up to the time of mailing this letter.

Capt. PAYNE, with eleven men of the One Hundredth New-York, were taken prisoners while making a reconnoissance last week. WHIT.

PROGRESS OF OPERATIONS.

Correspondence of the New South.

MORRIS ISLAND, Tuesday, Aug. 4, 1863.

There is very little publishable news of interest since our last advices. Our lines have been steadily advanced under a hot fire from the enemy, with scarcely a casualty. Not one has been reported for two days. Our advance is now only about 600 yards from Fort Wagner.

Our batteries and the fleet allow the enemy but very little rest. Occasionally there has been very sharp and continuous firing, and on one or two occasions the Wagnerites have responded vigorously for a few moments, as if enraged at the effect of our shells, but the principal shelling is from Sumter, Fort Johnson and its outworks, and Battery Gregg.

Col. JAMES MONTGOMERY, while commanding in the trenches, Lieut.-Col. ABBOTT and Major HENDERSON, of the Seventh New-Hampshire, had a very narrow escape a day or two since, from a spherical shot, which burst directly over their heads; and there is scarcely an officer who has been at the front without some similar adventure. No officer has been wounded, however, since my last letter. Major HENDERSON, of the Seventh New-Hampshire, had a narrow escape one night in a trench, near the front, which, I believe, has not been chronicled in the New South. He was sitting in the trench, with several others, when an immense projectile from the rebel works, struck in the bank directly behind them, tipping over half a cart-load of dirt upon them, and nearly burying them up. Major HENDERSON found himself firmly fixed in the sand, with the elongated 10-inch implement of destruction lying up against his shoulder. Supposing it to be a shell, unable to stir an inch, the Major's sensations, from the time of discovering the projectile, until he became convinced that it was a solid shot, can better be imagined than described.

The troops do not seem to suffer at all from the climate. Barren, sandy, with no shade, Morris Island was at first rated a disagreeable spot for the troops, but longer acquaintance has resulted in very favorable opinions. If there are no trees, the sea-breezes sweep across the island uninterruptedly; if the sand bluffs are disagreeable to travel over, the beach is one of the finest in the world, wide enough for a general thoroughfare, solid and smooth as a marble floor. At Folly Island the water is disagreeable and unhealthy; here, the absence of all vegetation renders it clear and sweet. The camps are well policed, and if they care well for themselves there need be no serious sickness among the troops.

In Gen. GILLMORE'S marquee are three elegant flags which have been captured on this island. Two belonged to the Twenty-first South Carolina, one of the old and the other the new style. The old one has "Pocotaligo" inscribed on it, and was captured by Private ROPER CORNELOW, Co. D, Sixth Connecticut, on the 10th ult., after shooting the rebel color-bearer.

Capt. EATON, of the Engineers, has been presented with an elegant and costly sword and equipments, by his company. The presentation was a "surprise," and excited considerable astonishment in the worthy Captain.

MILITARY NEWS TO BE SUPPRESSED.

A STRINGENT ORDER FROM GEN. GILLMORE.

DEPARTMENT OF THE SOUTH, HEADQUARTERS IN THE FIELD, MORRIS ISLAND, S. C., Aug. 7, 1863.

GENERAL ORDERS, No. 66.—I. The practice of giving information to their friends or to the public Press, on matters connected with military operations in progress or in contemplation, so unscrupulously indulged in by officers, citizens and soldiers in this Department, and by employes on transports, is fraught with incalculable evil to our cause, and must be stopped at once. No information, which could in any way benefit the enemy, must be divulged, directly or indirectly.

Upon the following subjects in particular, the strictest silence must be observed, viz.:

1. The names of division, brigade or post commanders.
2. The strength of regiments, brigades or divisions, except after engagements have taken place.
3. The numbers and position of regiments, brigades, divisions, batteries, or pieces of artillery.
4. Allusions to the kind or quantity of arms, cannon or ammunition.
5. The number of transports, or kind of supplies transported in any movement.
6. The description of any movement, or any allusions to its object, until the same shall have been accomplished or defeated.
7. Suggestions of future movements or attacks.
8. Any allusions whatever to scouts or reconnoissances, whether accomplished or yet in prospect.
9. The position or location of camps, batteries, pickets, military roads or outposts.
10. The publication of official reports of operations without special permission from the Department Commander.

II. Violations of this order will be met with the severest punishment known to military law and usage in the field.

By order of Brig.-Gen. Q. A. GILLMORE.
ED. W. SMITH, Assistant Adjutant-General.
ISRAEL SEALY, Captain Forty-seventh New-York Volunteers, Acting Assistant Adjutant-General.

A STRIKE.

SHARP ORDER FROM CHIEF-QUARTERMASTER ELWELL.

From the New South.

The following circular has just been issued by the Chief Quartermaster of this Department. We indorse it fully. He should punish to the fullest extent of his power any insubordination among the employes at such a time as this. It is little better than a mutiny of troops in the face of the enemy.

CIRCULAR.

To the Employes of the Quartermaster's Department:

There must not be the least holding back or want of interest, or willingness to work all day, and all night too, when called on, or hesitation in obeying the order of the officer or chief man under whom you are placed. Any man who is thus guilty, shall be sent to work in the trenches, and in the works in the very front, at Morris Island.

I am determined to make short work of such worthless and wicked men as will not put forth every effort, and show an interest in the public service at this important time. Any man that will "strike" for higher wages in this emergency, should be shot.

J. J. ELWELL,
Chief Quartermaster Department of the South.

THE BIG GUN.

WHAT THE THREE HUNDRED POUND PARROTT IS EXPECTED TO DO.

From the Washington Republican.

The breaching power of the 10-inch 300-pounder Parrott rifled gun, now about to be used against the brick walls of Fort Sumter, will be best understood by comparing it with the ordinary 24-pounder siege gun, which was the largest gun employed for breaching fortifications during the Italian war.

A 24-pounder round shot, which starts with a velocity of 1,625 feet per second, strikes an object at the distance of 3,500 yards, with a velocity of about 300 feet per second.

The 10-inch rifle 300 pound shot has an initial velocity of 1,111 feet, and has afterward a remaining velocity of 700 feet per second, at a distance of 3,500 yards.

From well-known mechanical laws, the resistance which these projectiles are capable of overcoming is equal to 33,750 pounds and 1,914,150 pounds, raised one foot in a second respectively. Making allowances for the difference of the diameters of these projectiles, it will be found that their penetrating power will be as 1 to 19.6.

The penetration of the 24-pounder shot at 3,500 yards, in brick work, is 63 inches. The penetration of the 10-inch projectile will therefore be between six and seven feet into the same material.

To use a more familiar illustration, the power of the 10-inch rifle shot at the distance of 3,500 yards, may be said to be equal to that of the united blows of 200 sledge hammers weighing 100 pounds each, falling from a height of ten feet and acting upon a drill ten inches in diameter.

From Albany.

THE TROOPS FURNISHED BY THE CITY OF NEW-YORK—THE SIXTEENTH NEW-HAMPSHIRE REGIMENT.

ALBANY, Thursday, Aug. 13.

An official report made by Adjutant-Gen SPRAGUE to Gov. SEYMOUR to-day, shows that New-York City has furnished from the beginning of the war 33,623 men in excess of all her quotas; not counting 20,851 men sent by her on occasions of sudden peril for the defence of the National Capital.

The Sixteenth New-Hampshire regiment, Col. PIKE, arrived to-day from Fort Hudson, and took the Eastern train for home.

NEWS FROM FORTRESS MONROE

Reports of an English Doctor Escaped from Richmond.

A Mass Convention of Unionists Called in North Carolina.

A DELEGATION TO BE SENT TO WASHINGTON.

FORTRESS MONROE, Wednesday, Aug. 12.

The gunboat Memphis arrived this morning from Fort Royal, and direct from our fleet off Charleston. They left the fleet on Sunday evening last, and bring no additional news. The siege was progressing satisfactorily.

The Seventh and Eighteenth army corps are united into one, and Maj.-Gen. PACK leaves Fortress Monroe immediately to take command of that section of the Department in Newbern. Maj. BENJAMIN B. FOSTER, A. A. G.; W. H. HAND, Medical Director; Lieut. CHARLES R. STERLING, A. D. C., and Lieut. JAMES D. ATWATER, A. D. C., all of Gen. PECK'S old Staff, accompany him to his new field of labors in that Department.

The steamer De Molay, from Boston, arrived in Hampton Roads this morning.

An English doctor arrived at Fortress Monroe, today, from Richmond. The doctor gave his name, but wished it not published. He says he left Richmond last Saturday, and came by cars to Ivor Station on the Norfolk and Petersburgh Railroad, 30 miles this side of Petersburgh, which is as far as the cars are running. From Ivor he came in a Virginia carriage (a one-horse two-wheeled cart) to a point six miles this side of Suffolk, and from thence he came on foot to Norfolk. He reports that there are no troops, not even a guard, in Suffolk, also that there are no troops in Richmond, but the streets are filled with rebel officers. He saw no gunboats in the harbor at Richmond; but knows that they are building two ironclads, though he does not know how far they were advanced. The doctor was in Richmond five weeks, and complains of the high price of board—$12 per week, and hard fare at that.

The Richmond Enquirer, of Monday last, expresses strong condemnation of the course the North Carolinians are pursuing, in calling a mass convention of the Unionists of North Carolina, for the purpose of sending a delegation to Washington, D. C.

The Enquirer speaks hopefully of Charleston, and claims that the works of Battery Wagner have been greatly strengthened.

The doctor also says that the Southerners express a great dislike to Gen. GRANT, and say that GRANT and ROSECRANS are the only Federal Generals that they fear.

THE DRAFT.

It Will Re-Commence on a Week from Next Monday.

FULL PARTICULARS CONCERNING IT.

Appreciating the deep-seated and wide-spread interest which every class in our community feels concerning the approaching Draft, and all matters connected with it, we have been at considerable pains to ascertain the exact state of affairs, the prospects and the Governmental determination.

Before the original lists were sent to Washington they were carefully examined and checked by the Enrolling Board; after they were filed in the office of Col. FAY, at Washington, a Council of enrolling officers met and reëxamined them.

In consequence of the representations made by Gov. SEYMOUR, they are now undergoing a third examination, with so far as obtained, the result of approximate perfection of detail.

It is deemed best by the authorities to leave certain matters of preparation in the hands of the District Provost Marshals, and one of those matters is the date at which the draft shall take place.

In two, and possibly in more of the City Districts, the draft will be recommenced on Monday the twenty-fourth instant.

Ample preparations are being made for the protection of the force engaged in the operation, and no interference whatever will be permitted, as indeed none is anticipated.

A very gratifying feature of the modus operandi is this: To any drafted persons who, for whatever reason elect to go themselves to the army, a furlough of longer or shorter time will be granted for the purpose of the necessary preparation for departure, the settling up or arranging of business details and so on.

Substitutes will be expected to be in immediate readiness for service, and will of course expect no furlough.

All the lists will probably have undergone the necessary examination by the 24th of the month, and the probabilities are that by the 1st of September the whole affair will be over, all the $300 paid in, and the substitutes provided, or the conscripts in the service of the United States.

THE DRAFT ELSEWHERE.

In Orleans County, N. Y.

From the Orleans Republican, Aug. 12.

The draft in this District was not exempt from the curious incidents that mark the wheel of fate. The enrolling officers had put down the names of all that they could see or hear of, including the lame, blind, deaf and dead. This swelled the enrollment list, and of course the quota to be drawn. Among the names put in the wheel for this town we noticed that of GEORGE K. MASON, who died in the United States service nearly a year since; and W. A. SHELDON, who has not resided in this town in four years.

Among the drawn in this town are JOSEPH BELGARD and HENRY WEBBER, neither of whom have ever walked without artificial aid. There is one clergyman, Rev. Mr. REDDY, drawn. The editor of this paper and the junior of the American both took prizes. So also did the foreman of this office and two compositors in the American office. The firms of BARELL & SEARS and FOSTER & COLLINS yield up all their members. Justice SPENCER is the only legal gentleman drawn, and the medical profession loses nobody. HENRY V. VAN DUSEN, who lost an arm at Gaines' Mills, and is now a clerk at Washington, is also called for. Four volunteer officers, Capt. BELL and Lieuts. GASKILL, KENYON and CASTLE are taken. So is O. F. BURNS, whose drawing in Genesee County we mentioned last week.

In Gaines one Clergyman, Rev. Mr. ROGERS, is drawn.

Ridgeway loses its Supervisor, Mr. GILDDEN, who is, we believe, the only "first-class" Supervisor in the county. In this town one of the drawn is a boy four years of age—at least no other person answering to the name is known there.

In looking over the names the reader will doubtless discover other freaks of fortune.

In Philadelphia.

From the Ledger, Aug. 13.

In the several Congressional Districts in Philadelphia, where Boards of Enrollment are engaged in hearing claims to exemption, an average of 25 substitutes for each District is received daily. As soon as a squad of 200 is collected together, the men are forwarded to the Army of the Potomac, under a sufficient guard. In view of the fact that substitutes from other parts of the State, as well as from other States, are going forward, the army will soon be filled. In a short time the drafted men of Philadelphia will be required to report for duty, and the additions to the army will prove a large one.

The bill in equity, filed in the Supreme Court, to test the constitutionality of the draft, by praying an injunction to restrain Provost-Marshal LEHMAN from taking a drafted man, named NICHOLS, will not be heard before the first Monday in September. In another instance, a writ of habeas corpus has been issued from the Court of Quarter Sessions, at the instance of a drafted man. The writ has been directed to Col. COLLES, in charge of the drafted men, and he will make a return to the writ, objecting to the jurisdiction of the Court. The case may be taken up on Tuesday, at which time the Quarter Sessions meets for the purpose of disposing of habeas corpus cases.

In New-Bedford, Mass.

From the New-Bedford Mercury, Aug. 12.

There were 96 conscripts before the Board of Enrollment at New-Bedford yesterday, of whom 62 received exemption papers, 18 furnished substitutes, and 16 passed.

The substitutes were taken to camp this morning.

The following is the official statement of the operations of the Board of Enrollment up to Aug. 10:

Exempt from disease	555
Exempt from other causes	367
Passed, and not furnished substitutes or commuted	121
Commuted	50
Furnished substitutes	193
Total exemptions	1,286

—being an average of 72 per cent. exempted and 28 per cent. passed.

Judge HOLT'S decision holds the drafted man responsible if his substitute proves to have been a deserter. Conscripts hardly feel safe in investing in Canadian New-Yorkers, who may by and by be claimed for service due to Uncle Sam, in a capacity other than a substitute.

In Auburn.

The Auburn Advertiser says that five wagon-loads of conscripts, from Lyons and other towns in Wayne County, arrived in that city yesterday morning, to the tune of "Marching Along," rendered in sonorous tones from the occupants of the leading wagon, as they drove up to the Exchange for refreshments to man and beast—hay for the latter and good dinners for the former. They were a jolly set of fellows, and looked hearty and stout, as a general thing.

Departure of Recruits.

The draft rendezvous in New-Haven was pretty nearly cleared out yesterday by the departure in the steamer Detroit of 240 men for the army of the Potomac. Seventy-one of them are for the Second Rhode Island regiment, and the rest for the Fourteenth Connecticut, which has previously received 280 men from this post.

Miscellaneous Items.

—Three table-waiters at the American House in Boston were recently drafted and immediately absconded to Wolfboro, N. H.; they were found by the Provost-Marshal. On hearing that they were about to be taken back to Boston, the Copperheads of the place got up a meeting in opposition, which was inaugurated by an ex-naval officer belonging in the Tenth Ward of Boston, and bearing the name of a celebrated Mormon prophet, who held forth on the "unconstitutionality" of the Conscription law, &c. The proceedings were cut short by one of the officers announcing that they had nothing to do about the law except to enforce it, and that they should take the prisoners by the boat about to leave—at the same time exhibiting a loaded revolver. The opposition at once subsided, and the deserters were brought away without further trouble.

—A strong, able-bodied man attempted to get an exemption on the ground that he was under high in one of the Rhode Island districts. But the doctor untied a peculiar twist in his back, and he at once grew two inches.

—A deserter recently made an attempt to swim from McNiel's Island, Portland Harbor, to the main land, but was pursued and caught. The fellow had the price of his services—$300—with him when he attempted the escape, but lost it on the way. Besides this, he will undoubtedly be liable to punishment as a deserter.

—One of the singular incidents of the conscription at Middleboro, N. H., was the drawing of two blind brothers, John and Joseph Hatton, of East Wareham.

—A substitute in the first Rhode Island district gave his name as Samuel Burns. On examination, the letters B. C. were handsomely marked on his breast. When asked, if his name was Samuel Burns, what was the meaning of the above letters, with a twinkle of the eye he exclaimed, "That's for Bridget Connelly, my sweetheart."

The Late Expedition Up the James River.

"Last Monday we started up the river with one Monitor and one small tug, beside ourselves. We got within eleven miles of Fort Darling, when a crowd of sharpshooters fired on our three boats, and the way we poured the canister and shell into those woods was a caution. Well, we shut them up for awhile, and went up within nine miles of Fort Darling, and the Monitor anchored; but Gen. HUNTER and his aids were on the Monitor, and they came on board our boat and wanted us to proceed further up the river; so we ventured, and when we got within six miles of Fort Darling we picked up a white man in a boat, who was making for the bushes. We told him we'd shoot him if he didn't come aboard, so he came on board, and in five minutes after that a torpedo burst under our starboard bow. I and several others were right over it when it burst, and such a report you can hardly imagine. I was sent about fifteen feet into the air, and came down in the water, which was whirling in all directions. A tug that followed behind us picked me up. Two of our crew went down to rise no more; many others were nearly exhausted; two or three got wounded, not seriously though. One of them was by my side talking at the time; his head was cut with a piece of iron plating. The water was thrown up in torrents as high as our smoke-pipe, and then came down on our decks, overflowing everything for a time. Some jumped overboard before they were hurt. I was the only one thrown overboard. It ripped up our deck forward, and carried away considerable of our plating.

We came down to the Monitor and anchored all night of the 5th inst. On the 6th, at 4 A. M., got under way and came down the river, which is very narrow, and with high bluffs all the way. At 6 A. M., about two hundred sharpshooters fired on us, which drove us from our guns, and then they poured in six-pound howitzer balls with a vengeance. As we got past the bluff so that we could get range, we poured in the canister, but one of their shot passed through our boiler, and we soon lost steam and drifted ashore. We were leaking badly, having been struck two feet below the water. We had got out of their range then; we were aground three-fourths of an hour, and expected every minute they would be upon us. We were under a very high bluff and couldn't get our guns to bear at all. We were in a tight fix, and all that stopped them from coming on that hill was a long marsh that they couldn't cross. Finally the tug came back and towed us off. When we got down to the Monitor there was another tug there that had just come up the river. The tugs towed the Monitor and she towed us behind. We came out of it first-rate; not a man was hurt. When we got down to Malvern Hill they opened an awful fire on us, the same way as the others did—sharpshooters to drive us away from our guns; then the shell and shot were terrible, raking us fore and aft. Remember we had no steam at all. They waited until the Monitor got by, then they sooked iron into us rough and ready, and we into them, when the sharpshooters stopped firing.

We are completely riddled. One of our pilot-houses is knocked to pieces, the Captain's room is stove in, and the Purser's office looks like a carpenter's shop. The Doctor was lying in his berth, and a six-pound shot went through the whole length of it and never touched the old fellow. The bullets came thick as hail, and the protection we had was the iron plating that was not touched by the torpedo on the port side. The whole crew had to lie flat when the bullets came.

The Captain is a brave little fellow, encouraging his men all the time and no hard words spoken. The rest of the officers don't want to try it over again, and I don't blame them."

MORE ABOUT THE FASHIONS.

From Galignani.

In the same degree as the season advances, so do we expect that within another month it will retain a regularity and precision which it has not at present. The rules to be adopted are the same material as the dress, or in white or accordance with the color of the dress, and even tulle. The black tulle veils are worn very much, and are trimmed with coronet velvet and satin ribbon. Bonnets are also made of black velvet, and are ornamented with a feather and a white aigrette. The latter is worn at present in preference to any other. Flowers are worn very little, and those only of the most delicate kind. Bonnets are also made of white crape, and are trimmed with white feathers and white ribbon. Caps are also worn, and are trimmed with white lace and white ribbon. Some caps are made entirely of white lace, and are trimmed with white feathers. Hats are worn very much on the back of the head, and are trimmed with white feathers and white ribbon. Some hats are made entirely of white crape, and are trimmed with white feathers. Hats are also made entirely of white lace, and are trimmed with white feathers. Hats are also

N., as the Government Engineer, who will see to it that the vessel is in first-class order. The Delaware Iron Works deserve great credit for the manner in which they have built the vessel. They have put every available man upon the work they could, in order to complete it at the earliest moment—more than a thousand men being employed. They have constructed machinery of all kinds for shearing, punching and bending the massive plates and bars of iron, and nothing is omitted to insure complete success.

ANOTHER MURDERER IN CUSTODY.

JOHN NICHOLSON, an Irish laborer, aged about 28 years, was arrested yesterday on the charge of having been one of those who, as a leader of the riot on Monday, the 13th of July last, aided in the hanging and burning of the negro FRANKLIN in Clarkson-street.

Ann Hayes, of No. 28 Cornelia-street, and Mary Kenny, of No. 176 Prince-street, testified that on the day in question they saw three colored men walking through Varick-street; that when they arrived at the corner of Charlton-street, the prisoner, with a number of other men, came out of a liquor-store, and immediately made a furious attack on the colored men; Franklin, the deceased, was one of them; stones and brickbats were thrown by the attacking party; the colored men were pursued for several blocks; the deceased was finally caught, and after having been beaten and maltreated in a most unmerciful manner, till he was almost insensible, he was hanged to a tree; a fire was then kindled beneath the body as it was suspended from a limb, and the remains were nearly consumed by the flames in the course of two hours; there was a large crowd surrounding the body during the whole time it was burning, and foremost among those who aided in the hanging and burning was the prisoner, John Nicholson. These witnesses further testified that several other colored men were chased and beaten in that vicinity by the mob soon after the deceased was hung.

Christopher Delano, of No. 80 Charlton-street, also witnessed the assault upon the colored people, and positively identified the accused as having been one of the leaders in the hanging and burning of FRANKLIN. This witness described the scenes that took place while the body was suspended from the tree as horrible and barbarous to the last degree. The acts committed by Nicholson and his co-workers to the dying negro are too brutal for publication.

The prisoner was committed by the examining magistrate to await the action of the criminal courts. Officer Jor, of the Twenty-eighth Precinct, is entitled to much credit for the adroit and fearless manner in which he effected the arrest of the culprit.

More Arrests of Ringleaders in the Riots.

DANIEL CONROY, a native of Ireland, aged about 40 years, by occupation a laborer, and THOS. KREHAN, also an Irishman, aged 40 years, contractor, were arraigned yesterday before Justice KELLY, at the Jefferson Market Police Court, charged, on the complaint of JOHN ALCOCK, a soldier belonging to the Invalid corps, with having been leaders of a large number of men and boys, who, on Monday, the 13th of July last, made an attack on buildings in Third-avenue, near Forty-third-street.

ALCOCK testified that his company was ordered to the vicinity of Provost-Marshal JENKINS' office at about the time the place was fired by the mob. When the soldiers undertook to stop the proceedings and clear the streets of the rioters, as they were directed to do, the crowd made an attack upon them, and by means of stones, brick-bats and clubs, many members of the company were very much injured, among whom was the complainant. The mob took his musket from him, broke his left arm with a club, and otherwise beat and bruised him so badly that he was picked up insensible and conveyed to the New-York Hospital, where he has since remained under medical treatment. Alcock was quite positive that the above-named prisoners were among those who led the mob upon this occasion.

John H. Woodward, of No. 121 East Thirty-sixth-street, testified that he witnessed the attack made on the complainant, and positively identified Conroy and Kreinan as among those who took his musket from him and beat him with clubs. Several other witnesses also testified to a similar state of facts.

Justice KELLY committed the accused to await the action of the Grand Jury. The prisoners were arrested by Officer Schoonmaker of the Sixteenth Precinct.

JOHN ELLIOT, aged 33 years, a native of Ireland, died at No. 256 East Tenth-street.

JOSEPH HYNE, aged 60 years, a native of Ireland, residence No. 198 Elizabeth-street.

FRUIT-GROWERS.—The Fruit Growers' meetings at the Agriculturist office, No. 41 Park-row, which were suspended for a few weeks, are now resumed, and will be held every Thursday, at 1 o'clock P. M. The discussions yesterday were on the fruits of the season, embracing blackberries—samples of which, rivaling the famous New-Rochelle or Lawton, were on exhibition—peaches, early apples and pears. The general prospect of the fruit crop was canvassed, and the conclusions arrived at were that apples would be comparatively light, pears less than an average crop, while peaches promised fair. Arrangements were made for a grape exhibition, to come off early in October, for which liberal prizes are to be awarded.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR ICE-WATER.—In these days, when ice is dear and oftentimes not to be had, a very excellent drink can be made, of one-sixth to one-fourth of good cider vinegar, about three-fourths water of ordinary Summer temperature, and two table spoonfuls of fine white sugar to an ordinary tumbler full; good brown sugar will do in the absence of white. To many persons this is not only a healthful but a very agreeable drink. For our soldiers it would be an excellent substitute for lemonade, however well prepared. This drink has been used with great benefit by dyspeptics, who cling to it as a healthful and invigorating drink. The proportions of all ingredients can be regulated according to taste.

TO THE BENEVOLENT LADIES OF NEW-YORK.—There is a deplorable case of a destitute widow of a soldier from this City, killed in the battle of Gettysburgh, Pa., which preeminently calls for the immediate active sympathy and pecuniary aid of the benevolent ladies of this City. This poor sick woman, now in the last stage of consumption, almost in the article of death, with five infant children, most of them girls, dependent upon the pittance of three dollars per week for their sustenance and her medicines and comforts, may be found and cared for, on inquiry for Mrs. WILSON, at No. 324 Cherry-st.

GREAT INCREASE OF BUSINESS AT THE TOMBS.—Justice CONNOLLY, Wednesday, examined and disposed of over four hundred cases at the Tombs Police Court. A great proportion of these were petty complaints, such as drunkenness, disorderly conduct, theft, [illegible], &c., still the amount of labor required in the disposition of all [illegible] is practically very great, and [illegible] is actually required at the hands of the Court.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

REMOVING A PUMP.—Mr. WM. G. BOOSE appeared before Justice SUTTON, Yesterday, on the complaint of Mr. DENNIS MCLAUGHLIN, Alderman of the Second Ward, on the charge of violating the ordinance in removing a pump and filling up a well in front of premises in Front street, between Fulton and James streets. Mr. BOOSE is the business manager of a newspaper to be started in this city. A building in Front-street is now being remodeled and fitted up for a printing office. A vault under the sidewalk being necessary for the steam apparatus to work the presses, an excavation was made after obtaining a permit from the proper officer. Authority was also obtained from the Mayor to remove the well and pump in front of the building. This pump was a convenience to the residents of the vicinity, and objection is made to its removal. The Alderman made the complaint therefore on behalf of some of his constituents. The complainant and defendant gave their evidence, and the Justice reserved his decision.

EFFECTS OF THE HEAT.—JAMES BLOOM, a workman employed in MUCHMORE'S coal-yard, corner of Main and Plymouth streets, fell down exhausted from the heat on Wednesday. He was conveyed to the City Hospital, where he died yesterday.... ELLEN SULLIVAN, residing at No. 148 Plymouth-street, fell down from the effect of the heat, and died.... MARGARET CASSIDY, an elderly lady, residing at No. 6 De Bevoise-street, died yesterday, from the effect of the hot weather.... JAMES GARDINER, a boy, was found at the corner of Hicks and Amity streets, suffering from sun-stroke. He was taken to the City Hospital. He was recovering yesterday.

NEW-JERSEY.

MOVEMENT FOR AN ARSENAL.—At the meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Hudson County, yesterday afternoon, one of the members, Mr. JOHN MCGUIGAN, offered a resolution, which was adopted, for the appointment of a Committee to ascertain and report to the Board the probable cost for the erection of an arsenal for the use of the county. Messrs. MCGUIGAN, DEMMING, Dunn, Col. ANEL SPEAR were appointed said Committee. They were instructed to confer with officers of the Government with a view of procuring, if possible, the old United States Arsenal and grounds located at Hudson City.

SUSPICION OF FOUL PLAY.—Yesterday forenoon the body of an unknown man was found in the Hackensack River, near the plank road bridge. Deceased was about 40 years of age, and was dressed in blue flannel shirt and black pants; on the left arm were the initials "K. L." Bruises or marks of violence were found upon the head and arms. Late on Sunday night the neighbors heard a disturbance near the bridge, and it is thought that deceased may have been waylaid.

FOUND DROWNED.—The body of an unknown man, about 30 years of age, in a perfectly nude state, was found in the water near the Long Dock yesterday. It was taken in charge by Coroner FARRELL, of Jersey City.

DEATHS FROM THE EFFECTS OF THE HEAT.—During the present month there has been 22 deaths from the effects of heat in Jersey City and vicinity.

LAW REPORTS.

Substitution of Attorney.

SUPREME COURT—CHAMBERS.

Before Justice Peckham.

John Jay, Receiver, vs. W. H. Degroot et al.—This was a motion made by the defendant to vacate a judgment entered by the plaintiff against the defendants for the deficiency under a decree of foreclosure. The grounds of the motion were, that there had been a verbal agreement by the plaintiff not to enter the judgment, and that in pursuance of such agreement, the defendant had paid a claim in suit against the plaintiff, and thereby satisfied the deficiency for which the judgment was entered.

The plaintiff objected to the motion, because it was not made by the attorney of record for the defendant, claiming that no one but such attorney was entitled to notice a motion in the cause, and cited the case of Jerome vs. Boram, (1 Wendell's Reports, 293.) The defendant claimed that the relation and duty of the attorney of record ceased on the entry of judgment, and that then any other attorney could move in the cause, citing Lusk vs. Hastings, (1 Hill, 656.) The Court denied the motion with costs.

Levi S. Chatfield for the motion; Charles E. Whitehead for the Receiver.

MESSAGE FROM HIS HONOR THE MAYOR.

A message was received from his Honor the Mayor, relative to the visit of Rear Admiral Farragut to this City.

Which was received and directed to be entered at length in the minutes.

In connection therewith,

Alderman Farley presented the following preamble and resolutions:

Whereas, Rear-Admiral David Glasgow Farragut, the heroic chief of the Western Gulf Blockading Squadron, is now temporarily residing in this City; and,

Whereas, the indomitable energy, unsurpassed skill and heroic intrepidity that have characterized the career of Admiral Farragut, from the period of his entrance into the navy of the United States, when a mere boy of nine years of age, until the present time, when he takes rank among the veterans of the naval service—a career that commenced as a midshipman on board the renowned Essex, Commodore David D. Porter, and was [illegible] destruction or capture of the enemy's fleets of New-Orleans, the capture of [illegible] the reduction of the rebel batteries on the Mississippi, the passage of the Rebel Gulf, Warrenton, Grand Gulf, Port Hudson, and other strongholds, which, when combined with the victories of the land forces of the United States, under General Grant at Vicksburgh, and General Banks at Port Hudson, resulted in dividing in twain the so-called Confederate States; in paralyzing their resistance to the legitimate Government of the Union; in rendering nugatory the efforts of a most determined and unprincipled enemy to accomplish, by accomplishing the destruction of this, the most liberal Government in the world, and which eventuates in opening to the commerce of the nation, the inestimable blessings and advantages of the free navigation of the "Father of Waters" from its source to its embouchures—a career so unrivaled and brilliant that it must challenge the admiration of the world, and particularly of every lover of the country and its free institutions; and,

Whereas, The exhibition of such rare patriotism, devotion to and love of country in one who is a native of, and was domiciled in one of the disaffected States, at the time of the outbreak of the rebellion, and who so manfully resisted every overture made and advantage proffered to assist in betraying his country, by those who had sworn to be its defenders, but adds, more such an addition possible, to the reputation of Rear-Admiral David G. Farragut, for honesty, integrity and patriotic devotion to his country at that time in the utmost need of the services of her children, particularly of those whom she had educated and fostered—thus presenting another among the many instances where citizens of Southern birth have proved themselves "faithful among the faithless," and whose adhesion to the cause of the Union and the Constitution, but tends to prove the hopelessness of the rebellion, and the futility of the attempt of the traitors then and now in arms for their subversion; and

Whereas, It is in an especial manner the duty, as it is the pride of the Common Council, the representatives of the great commercial centre of this hemisphere, to bear willing testimony to the appreciation by themselves, and their constituents, of the patriotic worth, heroic valor and untiring energy displayed by Admiral Farragut in every position he has occupied during his long, eventful life, in which he has had an opportunity of exhibiting to an an admiring country, those great and manly qualities, so characteristic of the American Navy, and as it is equally the duty of the Common Council to add their feeble tribute of admiration and respect for one in so preeminent a degree deserving of such a mark of esteem, with a view of perpetuating to our remotest posterity, the bright record of the name and fame of Rear Admiral David G. Farragut, and in the hope of inspiring to deeds of emulation, the youth of the "Great Republic," be it therefore,

Resolved, That the freedom and hospitalities of this City be and hereby are respectfully tendered, by the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, to the Inhabitants of Rear-Admiral David Glasgow Farragut; that he hereby is earnestly requested to visit the Governor's Room, in the City Hall, on any day most suitable to his convenience, to receive formally the congratulations of the municipal authorities, and of affording our citizens an opportunity of paying their respects, personally, to the "Hero of the Mississippi;" and the Committee of National Affairs of both branches of the Common Council are hereby authorized to make the necessary arrangements for carrying into effect the provisions of this resolution; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution be suitably engrossed, duly authenticated, and appropriately framed, and presented to Admiral Farragut.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE REBELLION.

By the steamship Arago, which arrived at this port yesterday, we have news of the siege of Charleston to the afternoon of the 10th inst.—Monday last. Gen. GILLMORE then expected to be in readiness to open the grand attack on Sumter and Wagner on the 13th—yesterday—and had so notified Admiral DAHLGREN, who was entirely ready to cooperate with the land forces. The utmost confidence was felt in the result. Meantime shelling from both sides was going on daily, though with very trifling loss to us—the casualties at most not exceeding three or four per day. The health of our troops was improving rapidly, the location on Morris Island having been found much more healthy than that on Folly Island, on account of the absence of vegetation. A good sea breeze prevails during most of the day and night.

The movement for restoration in North Carolina appears to be assuming definite shape, judging by an article in the Richmond Enquirer of Monda last. It expresses strong condemnation of the course the North Carolinians are pursuing in calling a mass Convention of the Unionists of the State for the purpose of sending a delegation to Washington.

There is no news from the Army of the Potomac this morning. Everything is reported quiet.

A very important movement is on foot in Mississippi, looking to the bringing of that State back into the Union. Some of the best and most influential citizens are said to be in the movement.

Our San Francisco dispatch this morning states that the reports of secession risings in Santa Clara and Saline Counties were untrue.

GENERAL NEWS.

The steamship Ocean Queen, which left Aspinwall on the 5th inst., arrived at this port yesterday afternoon, bringing $313,464 in treasure from California and the Isthmus. There is no South American news by this arrival. In Central American affairs there is not much change. Salvador is represented to be almost entirely in possession of the invading President of Guatemala, and BARRIOS is considered hopelessly beaten. Affairs in the United States of Colombia remain quiet, though the contest between the Clergy and the National Government is not yet ended.

In the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HOFFMAN, PATRICK SHAREN and JOHN HAGAN, convicted of knocking down and robbing Mr. SEARLES on the first evening of the riot, were sentenced to ten years each in the State Prison. JAMES H. WHITTEN, alias Whitter, convicted of leading the mob in front of the Tribune office, was sentenced to the highest penalty for "riot"—one year in the Penitentiary and a fine of $250. Several other lesser criminals were sentenced, and the Court adjourned for the term.

The Board of Aldermen met at 10 P. M. yesterday. A message from the Mayor calling attention to the fact of the presence of Rear-Admiral FARRAGUT in the City, and suggesting that municipal honors be paid him, was accepted. Mr. FARLEY then presented a preamble and resolutions, highly complimentary to the Admiral, and in favor of tendering him the hospitalities of the City, requesting him to hold a public reception in the Governor's Room, and to present him with an engraved copy of the preamble and resolutions. They were adopted. Mr. HARDY presented a new $2,500,000 ordinance for the relief of conscripts, differing from the former ordinance in the fact that the money is proposed to be raised under a general law of the last Legislature, permitting town authorities and Common Councils of cities to extend such relief to the indigent families of volunteers and persons "ordered" into the national service as they may deem proper, and that $300 are to be paid to each poor conscript, but to be accepted in lieu of all further aid for himself or family, leaving each at liberty to pay his commutation or use the $300 for the benefit of his family, and go to the war. Mr. HARDY explained that there had been passed a recent law of the Legislature against offering bounties, and it had been found quite impracticable to act or raise money under the former ordinance, in which was a section prohibiting payments till the constitutionality of the Conscript law should be sustained. This was inserted from a belief that an early test of the law would be made, and it could be made in two weeks; but the Administration did not wish to have the test made. The speediest plan would be to have each of the nine Justices of the United States Supreme Court decide a case on writ of habeas corpus. A majority of their decisions would settle the whole question. The ordinance was laid over. Mr. HARDY presented a resolution requesting the Advertising Committee to report upon the propriety of the Common Council making the Herald a Corporation paper. The object of this is understood to be to make the Herald a Corporation paper beyond all doubts. A motion to grant the HACKLEY contract requisitions withheld in February and May, amounting to $23,250, was lost, and the Clerk was directed to ask the opinion of the Corporation Council as to the power of the Common Council to order the granting of the requisitions. Messrs. FOX, HARDY and HENRY were appointed a special Committee to consider the subject of permitting the running of freight cars of the Hudson River Railroad Company through Greenwich-street to the Battery. Adjourned to 1 o'clock P. M. on Monday.

The Board of Councilmen met by special call at noon, but lacking three of a quorum could not transact any business. Another call is signed for a meeting at 2 o'clock P. M., to-day.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul attached to the Catholic Church of St. John the Evangelist, on Fiftieth-street, held its annual picnic yesterday at Jones' Wood. The Pastor of the church, Rev. JAMES MCMAHON, assisted by many noted clerical gentlemen of the Order of St. Vincent, were present, with numerous civilians of eminence in our City. About 5,000 persons in all enjoyed the festivities and contributed $850 to the charitable fund for the poor of the parish.

In order to enable the workmen upon the iron-clad Tonawanda, now building at Philadelphia, to continue operations during the hot weather, sails have been raised above the deck, to protect the men from the rays of the sun. The vessel is now nearly ready to receive the iron plating, which is being worked into the required shape in the yard.

The iron-clad Galena has had the iron stripped from her at the Philadelphia Navy-yard, and the Government has decided to convert the hulk into a gunboat.

There was a fearful hurricane in Cleveland on Tuesday last, in which chimneys were rattled down very unceremoniously, and the roofs of several buildings were stripped off. The American Hotel was damaged to the extent of between $1,000 and $2,000. No lives were lost.

Stocks opened heavily yesterday, but rallied during the day, and closed firmly. Money was in less demand, and drafts were quoted rather easier. Gold sold as high as 127½, and left off at 126½. Sterling Exchange, 140.

Breadstuffs were active yesterday, prices generally drooping. Provisions and Groceries were less freely purchased. Cotton was quiet and depressed. Whisky was salable and steady. No remarkable changes occurred in other articles. Heavier freight engagements were reported.

The Conscription and the Constitution—Armies Here and Abroad.

The objection has been taken to the Conscription act that it transcends the constitutional powers of Congress.

The Constitution (Article I., section 8) authorizes Congress to declare war, and to "raise and maintain armies." The same article authorizes it to provide for calling out the militia, but only in the following specified cases, viz: "to execute the laws of the Union, suppress insurrections and repel invasions." Among the enumerated powers of the President, he is "Commander and Chief of the army and navy," and "of the militia of the several States when called into the actual service of the United States." (Article II., section 2.)

It thus appears that the power to create armies, as well as to use the militia organizations of the States, is expressly conferred upon the National Government.

The manner of raising armies is not prescribed, but left absolutely to the discretion of Congress. It is the exclusive judge of the best way to exercise the power, and may resort to one or many methods as it shall judge expedient. The more common method is to procure voluntary military service by paying bounties. But no intelligent man will say that this is the only method. The finances at the instant command of the Government may be inadequate, yet the military exigency pressing. The service for which troops are to be "raised" may be one of unusual discomfort or danger, or they may be required at a most inconvenient time, or to defend an unpopular section threatened with invasion. If troops must be had, and had instantly, or disaster and disgrace fall upon the nation, must the Government wait for slow or doubtful methods, or order out troops?

A most pernicious error underlies this objection to this particular power, and to many indispensable powers of the General Government—indeed, indispensable powers of the State Governments also, that the citizen need do nothing against his individual will. He is to serve only of his free consent and choice. Now, that is a radically false view of the relation between Government and its citizens. It is true that the theory of popular Governments is, that they are founded in the consent of the people. That means no more than that the people have consented to adopt a certain form of Government, and to invest the departments and officers of that Government with certain powers, and to elect certain persons as their representatives to administer the Government. All acts done by officers of the Government within the powers so conferred by the people, are deemed to be done with the consent of the people. Not that every individual approves of the act, but that the act of the majority by the modes prescribed by the Constitution, stands as the act of all, and binds all. Of course, if the consent of each man were necessary to bind him, Government would be impossible, and universal anarchy would take the place of society governed by fixed laws.

From the loose notions that have prevailed about the necessity of consent, has sprung the idea that no man can be compelled to enter into the civil or military service of the Government. Ordinarily, indeed, the people press in crowds into public employments, lured into competition for place by the attractions of fame, or salaried ease, or chance of plunder; but it never seems to have occurred to such people that they could be compelled to serve in a public office rendered unattractive by its onerous duties, or dangers, or inadequate compensation. But it is one of the clearest rights of Government to have all the services of the State, civil and military, performed by those who are selected for those services in accordance with existing laws, Not only is this the correct theory of Government, but it has been the uniform practice of all Governments, the most free as well as the most arbitrary, our own among the rest. Refusal to serve after election or appointment to office is visited, under various statutes, with heavy pecuniary fines, and even with imprisonment. Compulsory service as Road Commissioners, and compulsory service on the highways by the inhabitants of road districts, are familiar instances. Our entire State militia system is one of compulsory service. Prussia is a great Military Power because every male subject is required to pass a specified period of his life in the military service, or in training for it. The security and freedom of the Swiss Republic may be traced directly to the same cause.

The London Times has labored with its allies, North and South, to render the conscription unpopular, and declares that it has no precedent in the military history of England. But the system of compulsory public service, in England, is as old as the Government; and that contains the whole principle of the conscription. The English practice has worked some very singular results. In more bigoted times dissenters from the Church of England were disqualified from holding any political office under the Crown. If a person elected or appointed to office should serve in the office without having taken the Sacraments, as prescribed by the Church, within the year, he was subject to heavy pecuniary fine; and if he refused to serve in the office to which he had been elected, he was also subject to heavy pecuniary fine. His disqualification by reason of his not having taken the Sacraments was deemed to be voluntary, and held to be no excuse, although he pleaded conscientious scruples against taking the Sacraments in the prescribed mode. It finally became a prevalent mode of gratifying the bigotry of churchmen and the greed of gain, to select dissenters for offices which they would be punished for attempting to execute, and punishing them by fine for refusing to execute the office for which they were disqualified by law. This abominable practice was finally stopped by the Toleration acts and a decision of the House of Lords, based on a very celebrated opinion of Lord MANSFIELD, in the case of EVANS, a dissenter, who had been elected Sheriff of London, and fined for not serving in the office, when he would have been subject to a heavy fine for attempting to fill it. Nobody pretended that Government could not exact compulsory service, but the Lords decided that it was not competent to punish a man for not serving in an office, and to punish him if he did serve; and that his legal disqualification for the office exempted him (under the Toleration acts) from punishment for not serving.

But the London Times, if it were not acting the rôle of a Southern partisan and a libeler of American institutions, might have found other historic illustration close at hand. The military strength of England lies in its navy and not its army. The army is the smallest of the standing armies of European first-class Powers, but its fleets are the greatest. There never has been any serious difficulty in procuring troops by bounties, although attempts have been made to procure enlistments in foreign countries. Not so the naval service. England has repeatedly been reduced to great straits to man her fleets with seamen. She was contented to use bounties while that method would give her seamen fast enough and in sufficient numbers; but when this method proved inadequate, did the Government affect constitutional scruples? Did it succumb, and leave its merchantmen to be swept from the ocean by the men-of-war and privateers of her enemies? No, not for a moment. The Government conscripted seamen. Nay, it did more, and worse. It took not such as the lot of service might fall to, by the chances of a fair ballot; it sent its press-gangs into all the ports, it scoured the highways and by-ways of England, and impressed into the naval service whosoever the press-gang (paid a fee for each man) deemed fit for it. Many thousands of Englishmen were thus hurried by press-gangs on board of men-of-war, without notification to their families, subjected to the hardships of the service for many years, their whereabouts unknown to their kindred until their return, or until learned by a chance reading of the lists of those killed or wounded in the service or sick in the naval hospitals. England not only exercised the power of compulsory military service, but she carried it with a high hand against other nations. Holding the doctrine that the duties of citizenship could not be thrown off by emigrating to and becoming citizens of other nations, her cruisers stopped merchantmen of all nations on the high seas, and impressed and carried away into the naval service all seamen the officer deemed of British birth. These outrages were among the prominent causes of our last war with England; and Mr. WEBSTER, in one of his latest dispatches while Secretary of State, gave the Ministry of that day distinctly and finally to understand that this Government would never more permit the practice of impressment from ships covered by our flag.

Now, what is the point of the objection to the Conscription act? That act provides for a selection from the arms-bearing citizens of the States, by ballot, of a certain number of persons to serve in the Army of the United States. The mode of selection is equal and impartial. The sole constitutional objection to it is, that it obliges some to serve who are unwilling to serve. Is that a valid objection? No nation has ever conceded its validity; no Court has ever upheld it. It is a good objection against the power of the State Governments to call out the militia; good against every Government in the world; or not good against the National Government, that is expressly invested with the whole war power, and the power to raise and maintain armies. What a spectacle we would present to the eyes of the world, if this, the great Republic of the world, were admitted not to have the power to put a soldier in the field, for offence or defence, except it were his free will to go. It is a libel upon the national character, a libel upon the high spirit of our loyal people, to assert that they wish to denude the Government of this war power, so indispensable to its respectability and safety, and thus to leave it naked, exposed, defenceless to its enemies.

PRESIDENTIAL PROSPECTING.—On the 18th of the present month, it appears, there is to be a convocation of politicians at Rochester, N. Y., for the purpose of taking soundings in Presidential waters. Representatives of the "Union party" that has just carried the Kentucky State election are to be present, but whether any order of partisans from Missouri, Maryland or West Virginia, will appear and take part in the deliberations, is not yet developed. Ex-President MILLARD FILLMORE is spoken of as one of the movers in the scheme, but this is doubtful. That the meeting is regarded with very great interest in many quarters, is evident. The Seymour Democracy of this State is especially interested in the gathering, for it clearly expects to have its "platform," with the latest emendations and corrections, adopted by the parties that will be there assembled, which may become, in the end, the basis of an organization for the Presidency against the present Administration. If the "Regency" could thus take the front seat in the political omnibus that will start next year toward the White House, it would be regarded as a finishing blow to the upstart rebellion of the Mozarters of this City, and to all other ambitious organizations that hope to gain the leading place in the Opposition campaign of the coming year.

If there was anything fresh, or anything novel, likely to be set afloat by the proposed Rochester caucus, we should watch its meeting with lively interest; but we foresee simply the lagging of "superfluous veterans" on the stage. We shall see present, no doubt, PUGH and COX, of Ohio; RICHARDSON and ALLEN, of Illinois; HENDRICKS, of Indiana; divers Copperheads from New-York, New-Jersey and Pennsylvania, whose names are stereotyped; and sundry "conservative chaps" from Kentucky, and perhaps other Border States. There will be too much Vallandighamism and too much "War Democracy"—which are elements antagonistic—to make the meeting harmonious and successful; and the "conservatives" must look further for the "insoluble cement" that is to bind the Opposition together strongly enough to stand a campaign.

Inquiry Called For.

We understand that on the first morning of the July riot one or two of the gangs of workmen employed on the Central Park left their work, and marched down the Park, forcing or inducing the other gangs to leave their work also and follow them, and that the whole body then proceeded to take part in the business of murder and rapine then going on in the City, and continued engaged in it during two entire days, furnishing by far the best organized, and, therefore, most dangerous and destructive of the bands which contributed the memorabilia of that pleasant week to the vandals of New-York. We understood also that, although by the rules of the Park absence for two entire days from work without permission or lawful excuse entails dismissal, that these ruffians came back red-handed from their crimes, and resumed their labor on the third day, without remark or apology, and in all respects as if nothing had happened, and were suffered to do so. We understand, moreover, that to this hour no inquiry has been made, no reproof administered, and nobody selected for punishment; and that the men who are at this moment working on the Park and drawing the money of the people of this City in wages, are men who notoriously, and in open daylight, and without any attempt at concealment, spent nearly half a week, a month ago, in pillaging and burning our houses and in polluting our streets by assassination. We understand, moreover, that so far from any attempt having been made by the Park authorities to bring them to punishment, their chief care is, at this moment, to hush the matter up, and have it pass unnoticed.

We can comprehend the haste with which Gov. SEYMOUR sought to soothe the mob with honied words, for this is the first impulse of every weak man in the presence of tumult and disorder. We can understand, too, the haste with which the Common Council sought to placate them by voting away honest people's money, to pay their exemption fees. But the Central Park has hitherto been managed in a way which has taken it entirely out of the category of political jobs, and earned for it the singular reputation of being the one public work in which the benefit of the public seemed to occupy the first place. In Mr. OLMSTED'S day, it was an oasis in the sea of corruption and jobbery which flooded the City, and it presented, and, for aught we know, may have presented until very recently, the extraordinary spectacle of rigid discipline, rigid order, and accountability rigidly maintained by a public officer among hundreds of public employes, and under the very noses of the Corporation. We can hardly, however, believe it possible that that régime, which was so long our pride and boast, can have lasted till the 1st of July, for it is hardly conceivable that stringent rules, honestly enforced, would have been suspended for the first time for the purpose of giving two days' holiday to the laborers, to be spent in such innocent pleasures as plunder and arson.

We do not say it would be wise or, perhaps, possible to dismiss every man on the Park who was absent from work during the riots. A large number, no doubt, as in all such cases, joined the movement through intimidation, and wholesale punishment would in this, as in most other instances, work wholesale injustice. But there were, of course, ringleaders; there was, of course, a gang, or there were gangs, which began the rising, or made themselves conspicuous in diffusing it, and it is idle to tell us that they are not known. We, therefore, call upon the Commissioners to see that instant justice is done in the matter, and that examples are made of some of the ruffians whom they have in their employ. To pass this matter over without notice is a far greater scandal and disgrace than even the riots themselves. And it is also highly dangerous. If this be the kind of discipline they maintain amongst their workmen, we shall be driven to insist upon the transfer of the control of the works into other hands. Our troubles, if we are to judge from the language we hear, are not yet over, and every man who has a decent coat on his back has a right to insist that a horde of caterans shall not be maintained at the public expense within the City limits, ready at the first sound of tumult to be launched upon us, in organized bodies, with torch and bludgeon.

CONTRABAND NEWS.—Gen. GILLMORE is engaged in one of the most delicate, hazardous and important operations of the war. If by any means the enemy can get knowledge of his designs, his plans, the nature of his proposed mode of attack, the forces he has on hand, or the reinforcements that may arrive, the points at which he is stationing guns and troops, or any of the other indicative facts of his campaign, they may be enabled to thwart the very movement upon which his success depends. Yet letters have been freely written by officers and soldiers in the Department, giving information on some of these points, and several of these letters have been published in the newspapers. BEAUREGARD would probably be willing to give a thousand or ten thousand dollars for a transcript of one of these letters, or a copy of the newspaper containing it; and when obtained it might be worth to him more than dollars represent—it might be worth victory.

Gen. GILLMORE has issued a stringent but just order upon the subject. He warns officers, soldiers and citizens not to communicate information concerning military operations to their friends or to the public, and gives in detail the items that shall be considered contraband. He further announces that violations of the order will be met with the severest punishment known to military law and usage in the field. Those writing or receiving letters from South Carolina will take warning.

The American Iliad.

The Mud-Gods created by Mr. THOMAS CARLYLE must be moved to "inextinguishable laughter," if they are capable of such an exercise, on learning that he too has become as one of them. The great and grim philosopher is now growing very old—verging on his seventieth year; but the years which make him more gray and grizzly do not add to the brightness of his vision or the sweep of his genius. He is descending from the "empyrean immensities" in which erstwhile he loved to disport, into the "abysses" to which he has damned so many men and humbugs. Like the blind, though not "purblind" old man of Scio's rocky isle, he has written an "Iliad," and as it is neither long nor poetry, we present it in mass to our readers. It is the Ilias (Americana) in Nuce,—"The American Iliad in a Nutshell." The plot is simple; the characters few; the dialogue brief and brisk; the dénouement quickly reached, but dubious and smoky when found. It opens with a quarrel and ends with a scrimmage—in the midst of which the curtain falls, and the hapless author plunges into the mud. Like Gen. MCCLELLAN'S prospective battles, it is "short and sharp," but unlike them, is not "decisive." It is brevity without wit. The style and spirit of the dialogue show that "T. C." is not at all acquainted with the character of the interlocutors or the cause of the woes unnumbered which have befallen America. Peter of the North never addressed Paul of the South in any such terms or fashion as is represented. Paul never responded to Peter's never-administered upbraidings with any such pacific phrase as is put into his mouth; and the rejoinder of Peter, which preceded his attempt upon Paul's brains, might better have been attributed to Paul as the address-precedent to his attempt upon Peter's brains. The author's note which follows the termination of the epic and the commencement of the row is fortunately succeeded by the date of May, 1863, for by August it certainly required considerable modification; and had the new Homer, who is his own annotator, delayed the publication of his piece for a few months longer, he might have had occasion to completely reverse the character of his observation.

It would be a sorry spectacle surely to see a belligerent Peter beating out a peaceable Paul's brains because of a quarrel as to the term of hire of their respective servants; and it is pitiful, also, to behold the grand intellect of the Ecclefechan philosopher so obfuscated as to vent such nonsense concerning the character, nature and prospects of this stupendous war for the rights of man.

New Gold Mines in the West.

The fact that the entire range of Rocky Mountains, extending from the Mexican States northward to the Russian possessions, are gold-bearing, is so well attested now as to leave no doubter remaining. The only question is, on which side of the mountains, or within what mountain basins, are the deposits of precious metals the richer. California long bore the palm, and obscured all previous visions of fabulous wealth by the profusion of its placer yields. But, in the course of time, Nevada Territory revealed mines that put the most dazzling exhibits of California in the background.

Oregon and Washington Territories have enjoyed their share of attention, and if they have not equaled California and Nevada, have unquestionably revealed gold deposits that, before the California era, would have been deemed marvelous. Colorado, in course, came into the competition, and its mines are now yielding steadily $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of gold annually. Its friends say it is yielding more than the placers of California did at the same period after their discovery.

But all these developments of mineral wealth, equal to the yield, as now worked, of $75,000,000 a year, have not exhausted the American gold territory, nor satisfied the inquisitive energy of the American people. A new impetus has been given to prospecting in New-Mexico, and its acting Governor, W. F. M. ARNY, a skilled frontiersman and enterprising explorer, has just reached Washington with specimens of minerals from New-Mexican mines, and with reports of their fabulous wealth that would have been deemed incredible in former years, but are now easily believed to be true, especially by the credulous. At the same time, adventurous pioneers who have been hunting along the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains, north of the South Pass, up toward the valley of the Saskatchewan, in British America, are beginning to return to the Western States, laden with native gold-dust and nuggets, picked up in the sands of the streams forming the headwaters of the Yellow Stone and the Saskatchewan. We recognize the name of one—Dr. HOYT, of Wisconsin, in this list, whose intelligence and veracity are beyond question, who brings reports in the highest degree flattering to the richness and abundance of these new northern "diggings." If the nation were at peace, and the people had time to think of the revelations that are daily making in the far-distant Rocky Mountains, it seems likely that a new excitement, quite as consuming as the first California mania, might sweep over the land, and bear off to the West a hundred thousand gold-seekers, this year.

It is a pity that our people are so hampered that they cannot turn to, appropriate and develop the amazing gold fields that lie at their very doors. No other nation has such number and variety of mines, and of such illimitable wealth. And no other people have such an aptitude at prospecting and realizing without expensive tools and machinery. With ten years of peace to bless the land, the population of the United States could so direct its labor, white and black, to gold mining in fields already known to be remunerative, as to be able to pay off the National debt in coin, set every bondsman free, and give him pocket money for a good year's rest after his labors. When peace comes we shall see an unparalleled rush to the mines.

CHARLESTON IN CHANCERY.—We are assured by the advices of the Associated Press from Charleston, that all things were to be ready yesterday for a combined attack on Forts Wagner, Sumter and Cummings Point, and on that day Gen. GILLMORE would certainly put all his terrible agencies at work to reduce the rebel strongholds. We shall wait the result with the profoundest interest—but with scarcely a shadow of doubt of ultimate success. The operator under whose direction the siege is conducted knows precisely the elements of the problem in his hands. Given a brick wall of ascertained thickness, so many hundred yards from his guns—how long will it take him to batter it down? He can tell to an hour or two, to an almost absolute certainty. And so stands the case between Gen. GILLMORE and Fort Sumter, at latest accounts.

If Gen. GILLMORE had his position to get and his guns to plant within practicable range, there would be an uncertain quantity in his problem, and he might be wholly disappointed of results. But there is no such uncertainty. He occupies his position and cannot be dislodged, else the rebels would long since have driven his men into the sea. He has his guns in place, and in practicable range for work. The sum is made up, and any intelligent artillerist can cipher out the result. It seems it can be worked out practically almost as soon as an expert mathematician could calculate it. We are promised the reduction of Fort Sumter within "six hours" after the ball opens. Of course Gen. GILLMORE is not to be held responsible for the authorship of any such published remarks or estimates.

But there is something very merciless to "chivalry" in these cold engineering and mathematical calculations. Does the "spirit" amount to nothing in such a fight? Is the "sacred soil" of South Carolina non-combatant in such a crisis? Are the "homes of heroes" possessed of no repellant power? Is the valiant City of Charleston, "the cradle of secession," covered with no invisible and invulnerable shield by the gods? Must it, too, fall before vulgar Yankee iron? It looks so. Science is a cold, matter-of-fact sort of thing, and wholly regardless of the spirituelle of South Carolina secession.

THE QUESTION OF THE DAY.

The War Must Give Results, Not Negotiations—What the War Implies, and What the People Require—Mr. Whiting's Letter.

THE BERCHES, August, 1863.

"Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof" is Scripture, and it is wisdom. Many of the troubles of men and nations would never have come, if Providence had not been interrupted in the natural solution of events. It is true that for great national crimes, Providence provides no solution but the punishment which is the natural sequel of such crimes. American Slavery seems to be one of these; for Providence seems to have given the minds of men no clue to the final event. That Slavery must now perish is evident,—but how? Shall it be the act of the people,—the act of the States? the act of the National Government? an act of war? or of peace? Or, afraid and unwilling to meet any of these issues, shall this generation leave, as the past has, God to work out this problem in after days, as he did in Egypt, Greece and Rome, by bringing destruction amidst the fires and desolation of irretrievable ruin? Certainly this was the case with Rome, and every child can read it. But let that pass. I do not propose to discuss it now, but to say a word why it should not be discussed just at this moment. I want to enter a plea in abatement. The letter writers, the rumors of the day, and the little bird who whispers secrets, say that the President and his Council are discussing how they shall restore the Union, the status of the rebel States, the terms of admission, mode of negotiation. Now, let me say that this is, at present, a most unnecessary piece of trouble, and is seeking knowledge under difficulties. I think the American people have got something to say on this subject, and that it is not the business of the President to determine anything without Congress. What did the President say in his Proclamation was the object of the war? Was it not expressly to recover the forts, arsenals, property and munitions of the United States? And to cause the laws of the United States to be obeyed in all parts of the United States? Unquestionably. Well, is that the case? Is there any probability that it will be the case before Congress meets? Can we not wait, then, and let the representatives of the people determine questions of policy? Let no one fear Congress. There is a great majority there for the Union; not only for the Union, but entirely against the Peace Democracy; and there is, too, an unequivocal Anti-Slavery majority. But this is not all. The conclusion of the war concludes the very questions which are sought to be determined. Why, therefore, should we seek to decide what the conquest of the rebels decides of course? How can there be any need of negotiations while the rebels have armies in the field? And, when their armies are conquered, and their fortifications taken, and they can no longer resist, what is there left to negotiate about? Those who are honest loyal men will then govern the South, however few they are in number. Those who have taken an active part in rebellion are disfranchised, and, as in Kentucky, will not be allowed either to vote or be represented. All the active conspirators—men who voted in Legislatures, Conventions or in Congress, for secession or war—must either exile themselves, or be hung or imprisoned, as the Courts civil or Courts-martial shall say. Four-fifths of the entire nation will require this. Ah, yes, you say; but how about those negroes? Why, pursue the facts, and let them decide the case. What are the facts? Simply these: As a war measure, (and as a war measure, constitutional,) the President issued his Proclamation, emancipating slaves within certain limits. There are, or soon will be, a million of slaves emancipated under that proclamation. These slaves are free, and the return of peace cannot reënslave them. The idea of a State re-enacting Slavery, and thus, by its own act alone, giving itself constitutional rights, which otherwise it did not have, is preposterous. No State can do this without violating the Constitution as directly as it does nature and reason. These emancipated slaves will, therefore, remain free. What next? We have already a negro army enrolled, and armed as soldiers. If the Government is active in this measure, we shall have 100,000 negro soldiers in October. These will make the main garrisons of the various forts and towns we must, in any aspect of the case, continue to hold. In addition to this, we are now told the rebel Government are about to arm negroes also. In either case, the practical result after the war will be the same. They cannot be reënslaved, and they will have and know how to use arms. In one word, they will be a power sufficient to compel emancipation throughout the Southwest. The only way for whites to remain will be to free the negroes.

Here let me say one word on Mr. WHITING'S letter. It is able, eloquent and ingenious. But—I deny the proposition on which his whole conclusion rests; I deny that the rebels are "belligerents," and I deny that the jus gentium applies to them at all. Lord JOHN RUSSELL declared the rebels "belligerents," and in that insulted the whole nation. The rebels are rebels, and nothing else; and it is absurd to talk about the laws of nations between the subjects of a Government and the Government itself. If that were the case, it would be in the power of any minority in any country, by simply getting up an insurrection, to clothe themselves with national powers, and demand the rights of nations.

In the facts of the war—the natural progress of events—we have the elements of universal emancipation, and no political chicanery can prevent it. The war cuts the Gordian knot. We must maintain the freedom of slaves emancipated under the proclamation, (for we can have no pretence to honor or justice if we do not;) we must keep negro soldiers to garrison the forts of the South where necessary; we must allow none but loyal men to represent the returned people, (and of such it is the right of each House of Congress to judge,) and Slavery will perish in the Southwest. The beautiful Valley of the Mississippi (rich in every gift of nature) will be populous with freemen, cultivated as a garden, and filled with the fruits of industry. Let the armies of the Republic finish their work before we suffer politicians to renew their quarrels and distract the country with their selfish schemes. Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof.

The Christian Commission for the Army and Navy are to hold a meeting here to-morrow, to raise funds for benevolent purposes.

GEORGE H. STUART, President of the Commission, received a dispatch to-day that the sick and wounded of Charleston were greatly in need of ice. At short notice, appeals were made at the dinner-tables of the several hotels, and $1,500 were raised before night. A telegram was sent to Boston ordering ice to be shipped forthwith.

The Sabbath Convention closed its session to-day. Resolutions were adopted in favor of securing the better observance of the Sabbath throughout the country. Addresses were made by NORMAN WHITE, of New-York, Rev. H. D. GANSE, WILLIAM E. DODGE and GEORGE H. STUART, of Philadelphia. The proceedings, including the papers read before the Convention and the addresses, will be published by the Sabbath Committee of New-York. They are of deep interest.

AFFAIRS AT VICKSBURGH.

The Task of Cleaning the City of Confederate Nastiness—Usefulness of the Contrabands—Money Made by the Rag Business—Conduct of the Citizens—The Women Becoming Amiable—Future Action.

From Our Own Correspondent.

VICKSBURGH, Tuesday, Aug. 4, 1863.

Since my last, much of that superlative nastiness with which the rebels had feathered this Vicksburgh nest has disappeared, and in consequence the town begins to look as if at some remote period it had enjoyed relations of intimacy with civilization. Gangs of negroes have labored early and late in shoveling, sweeping and garnishing, until there is a very perceptible depreciation in the strength of the savage odors which assailed the nostrils of the new-comer, and rendered a residence hereabout as unenjoyable as one near a dozen soap factories. For this task—whose magnitude only has its equal in the stable-cleaning labors of Hercules—we are indebted to our negro allies and a few of that omnipresent old clo' class whom Gen. GRANT once rather pointedly referred to in a celebrated order. The negroes labored by order, the others by reason that they could make something by it.

When the news reached the North that Vicksburgh had fallen, a few thousand Hebrew patriots immediately made an exodus in this direction, with a view of opening a few hundred clothing stores at once. Greatly to their disgust Gen. GRANT refused to allow any trade whatever, and much to their pecuniary grief they found that they had brought their shoddy to the wrong market. Something, however, must be done, and so fifty or sixty opened shops for the repair of watches, an equal number opened establishments for taking pictures, another quantity went to work gathering up the immense amount of old rags left everywhere by the rebels, while the balance stood disconsolately for a time around corners cursing GRANT in every dialect originating at Babel, and then returned up the river. Those who went into the rag business had a good thing, for rags are high and the quantity left by Confederates in this place was enormous.

Several large warehouses were filled with the old coats, tents and other fixtures of the late army, which were baled, and now the sharp operators are on their way with their treasures to St. Louis. A surprise, however, awaits them at that place, for they had scarcely left before it was discovered that they had filled the interior of each bale of rags with cotton. Orders were at once sent to St. Louis to have the matter looked into, which will probably result in the confiscation of the entire cargo. Fancy their poignant misery!

Of military movements little can be said, for little or nothing is being done. Gen. HERRON has gone to Port Hudson. Gen. ORD and corps are about leaving with a view to the occupancy of Natchez; some four regiments are going up to Helena; the balance of the army remains here with the exception of five per cent. of officers and men, who have gone home on a twenty days' furlough. This last circumstance indicates that no operations of importance will be inaugurated for some weeks. GRANT is resting himself after his late set-to, and also putting himself in training for the next meeting in September.

The citizens here have as yet scarcely recovered from the bewildering effects of the tremendous scenes through which they have so lately passed. There is, however, a marked change even since my arrival. Men in jeans and butternut are showing themselves on the street with a demeanor in which they attempt to present all the haughtiness of the old chivalry, but which effort is essentially spoiled in the everywhere-presented fact that the chivalry has just been awfully thrashed by the Yankee. They resemble a game chicken coming out of a fight minus his tail-feathers, with both eyes closed up, wings hanging, and other evidences of punishment, and that still cannot resist a feeble attempt at a strut and a crow of defiance.

The chivalry here are gradually learning something—first, that we have in the North a Government; and secondly, that the people of the North, whom they regarded as mudsills because they manufactured and invented instead of playing poker, selling niggers and handling bowie-knives for a living, and whom they truly believed they could whip in the proportion of five to one, is a force that bids fair in a little while to sweep the whole Confederacy—"niggers," faro-banks, chivalry and all—into oblivion. It is excessively mortifying to acknowledge it, but the fact is indisputable. The Yankee is here—the lager bier, saur-kraut, Dutch, Irish and "Yank" elements, of which they have said and sneered so much, are all about them, witnessing their discomfiture to an extent that will not allow them for an instant to doubt its reality.

The ladies of Vicksburgh, with that elasticity so honorable and peculiar to the female sex, by which they so quickly recover from the damaging effects of grief, (the loss of lovers and husbands for instance,) are already resuming their smiles and equanimity, and making the streets roseate and the hearts of the Yankees sunny by their presence. For the first week or so they all refused to show themselves, but confined their efforts to turning their backs when a Fed. was passing, or making faces at our soldiers from behind the closed shutters. Next, the blinds began to open, and faces in pensive profile might be seen at the windows. Then a few of the tougher virgins ventured on short scouting excursions on the streets, with a view to "feel" of the Vandals. Not being robbed, murdered or ravished, as they probably expected, they daily grew in boldness and numbers, until to-day, when detachments from the reserves, in the shape of young and pretty women, have made their appearance around town in considerable force. Their dresses are somewhat old-fashioned—their head-gear is multifarious as to kind, and ancient as to date of construction, and they have, alas! no hoops, but in all those cardinal requisites, such as peachy cheeks, red, kiss-inviting lips, and bewildering flashing smiles, they lack in no single instance. These pleasant visitations are owing largely to the excellent police regulations by which the city is governed; there is no drunkenness, brawling, or rowdyism of any sort, and to day the place is more quiet and free from annoyance than it was ever before since it became a city.

The glorious old days of Vicksburgh—those days when the bowie-knife and revolver were supreme—when duels were of daily occurrence—when gamblers shot down citizens, and citizens hung gamblers to lamp-posts—when assassinations took place daily, and excited no abhorrence, and were succeeded by no punishment—when every man carried his life in his belt—when every other house was a gambling hell, and every other gentleman you met a gambler—when the chivalry vapored, and strutted, and hurled wordy defiance at the Yankee—these palmy, glorious days have passed away forever. "Order reigns in Warsaw," and Vicksburgh, much against her will, has become, or is in a fair way to become, civilized. So mote it be.

Gen. GRANT is still here. Possibly afraid if he goes North that he will have to commence making speeches, or that somebody will run him for President, he has concluded to stay here.

The weather during the day is intensely hot—at night it is cooler, but the relief that one would naturally receive from this is counteracted by the clouds of musquitoes that settle upon the unfortunate with the shades of night. The health of the troops is not above the average, although the sickness thus far has been mainly confined to chills and fever. The mortality among the negro troops has been very great, owing, probably, to the change of habit produced by their introduction to their new mode of life.

Nearly all the negroes who were "lying around loose" when our troops took the place, and who were roosting like crows on the piazzas of their absent masters' residences, and who employed their valuable time in playing the pianos and lolling upon sofas in the parlors or sunning themselves in happy idleness, have been presented with a Federal uniform and a spade (that is the male portion) and been placed at work. Several hundred are laboring upon the streets, and about 2,500 more are engaged in securing corn leaves for fodder on the various plantations near Vicksburgh.

Gen. BANKS came up last week and held a consultation with Gen. GRANT, whose object was probably a concert of action relative to future movements. He returned the next day after his arrival. GALWAY.

How Gen. Grant Looks After the Interests of His Soldiers.

The Cleveland Herald, of the 10th inst., says in reference to this subject:

"Gen. GRANT has issued a special order forbidding steamboatmen to charge more than $5 to enlisted men and $7 to officers, as fare between Vicksburgh and Cairo. Immediately after Vicksburgh had fallen a large number of steamboats cleared from Northern ports for that place, and were in the habit of charging soldiers going home on furlough from $15 to $30 fare to Cairo. A friend relates to us that the steamer Hope was compelled by Gen. GRANT to disgorge its ill-gotton gains the other day, under the following circumstances: This boat had about 1,000 enlisted soldiers, and nearly 250 officers, aboard, on their way home on short leave of absence, after the fatigues of their protracted but glorious campaign. The Captain of the Hope had charged these men and officers from $10 to $25 apiece as fare to Cairo. Just as the boat was about to push off from the wharf at Vicksburgh, an order came from Gen. GRANT requiring the Captain to pay back to his passengers all money received by him as fare in excess of $5 to enlisted men, and $7 to officers, or submit to imprisonment for disobedience, and have his boat confiscated.

The order astonished the Captain, but the presence of a guard rendered it useless to refuse, and so, amid the shouts of the soldiers over Gen. GRANT'S care of their interests, he complied with as good grace as possible and paid back the money. Our informant, himself a passenger on the Hope, was present when Gen. GRANT issued the order above referred to. The General, when informed of the impositions practiced upon furloughed men and officers by steamboatmen, was very indignant. 'I will teach them, if they need the lesson,' said the General, 'that the men who have periled their lives to open the Mississippi River for their benefit cannot be imposed upon with impunity.' No wonder that the soldiers of the Army of the Mississippi fairly worship their General."

NEWS FROM WASHINGTON.

OUR SPECIAL WASHINGTON DISPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Aug. 13.

THE ARMY.

Everything is very quiet to-day with the Army of the Potomac.

ADMIRAL FARRAGUT.

Rear-Admiral FARRAGUT'S visit to Washington has no reference to future operations, but is in accordance with the kind invitation of the Secretary of the Navy to do so at his convenience. The Secretary, at the same time, expresses to him the thanks of the Government for his valuable services to the country.

ALLOWED TO RESIGN.

Dr. PERLEY, Medical Inspector-General of the United States army, has been allowed to resign, in the face of the most serious charges that could have been preferred against an officer of the Government. Dr. Jos. K. BARNES has been appointed as his successor. While the change occasions general rejoicing among the medical profession in the army, great indignation is expressed that Dr. PERLEY'S many derelictions, not to say rascalities, were not brought before the public through the hands of a Military Commission. It will be remembered that one of the charges against Dr. PERLEY was that of signing soldiers' discharges in blank. There was ample testimony to establish that charge at least.

WEST TENNESSEE.

Advices from West Tennessee state that at the election on the 6th inst., in several counties, a large vote was polled for Mr. B. CAMPBELL, for Governor. Gen. CAMPBELL was until recently a Brigadier-General in the National service, but resigned on account of ill-health.

THE VOTES OF IOWA VOLUNTEERS.

It has been ordered that the Commissioners appointed by the Legislature of Iowa, to superintend the voting of the volunteers of that State, in the field, shall be furnished with proper facilities, and allowed access to them for the purpose indicated.

TRANSPORTATION.

The army regulations have been modified so as to allow Generals commanding armies or military departments to authorize officers of the Quartermaster's Department to furnish transportation in light wagons and convey Paymasters, their clerks and funds to points inaccessible by public conveyance on journeys for the payment of troops.

The maximum amount of transportation to be allowed in the field hereafter is as follows: Headquarters of an army corps, two wagons or eight pack animals; headquarters of a division of two brigades, one wagon or five pack animals; field and staff of a regiment, one wagon or four pack animals; every three company officers, one pack animal; every twelve company officers, one wagon or four pack animals; every two staff officers not attached to any headquarters, one pack animal; every ten staff officers not attached to any headquarters, one wagon or four pack animals; every sixteen non-commissioned officers and privates, one pack animal; every eighty non-commissioned officers and privates, one wagon or five pack animals. All personal baggage, mess chests, cooking utensils, desk papers, &c., will be included—reducing officers' baggage so as to bring it within the foregoing schedule. All excess of transportation with army corps, divisions, brigades, regiments, &c., over the above allowance, will be turned over to the Quartermaster's Department. Commanding officers of corps, divisions, &c., will immediately cause inspections to be made, and will be held responsible for the strict execution of this order. Commissary stores and forage will be transported by trains. Where these are not convenient of access, and where troops act in detachments, the Quartermaster's Department will assign wagons and pack animals for that purpose; but the baggage of officers or troops, or camp equipage, will not be permitted to be carried in wagons or on pack mules so assigned. Assignments of transportation for ammunition will be made in proportion to the amount ordered to be carried. Cavalry officers will be held responsible for permitting riders to carry extra baggage, thereby injuring horses. Nothing will be allowed to be carried in knapsacks except what is directed by the regulations and ordered. In ordinary marches, troops will carry two days' rations, but when required to move without baggage or trains, from eight to twelve days' rations may be required to be carried weighing 19 and 23½ pounds respectively. A Sergeant will be allowed one or two pack animals, and brigades or division one wagon, to carry camp kettles and ratables. The order concludes:

By increasing the ordinary meat ration, and levying contributions of flour and meal on the country passed over, the bread and small rations carried as above by soldiers, may be made to last from twenty to twenty-five days. In proper season the bread ration may be partially dispensed with, substituting green corn, which can be foraged in the fields. Movable columns in the field should be furnished with hand and horse mills for grinding grain which they procure in the country. Commanding officers in the field will observe the foregoing details, and adopt them as instructions in fitting out their command for rapid movement, and without ordinary transportation.

MOUNTED INFANTRY.

The plan urged by Gen. ROSECRANS by letter, and Gen. ROUSSEAU in person, for the raising of a cavalry and mounted infantry force to operate against the guerrillas along the border and throughout the Southwest, gains favor daily in Government circles. Senators HARRIS and COWAN, and Gen. MOOREHEAD with others, waited on the President to-day, to urge its immediate adoption. The President acknowledged its paramount importance in view of the present situation of affairs Southwest, and only objected on the score of its dsparture from the regular routine of the War Department. Hopes are cherished that red tape will not be allowed much longer to delay it.

BANNER PRESENTATION.

The Contraband Relief Association presented a beautiful banner to the First District negro regiment to-night. After the presentation, Col. FORNEY, who happened to be present, was called out and responded briefly, say ing he stood there to-night to take back much he had written and earnestly believed a few years ago. Port Hudson and Morris Island had convinced him of his mistake, and in the light of the brilliant courage there displayed, no man could doubt how large would be the share the enslaved race of this Continent were to have in achieving our deliverance as well as their own.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS.

The several Railroad Companies constituting the line between Washington and New-York, (now temporarilly represented here by their agents,) are busily engaged in the redemption of their promises, made last Winter, for the construction of a double track along the entire line. The double track between Trenton and New-York will soon be completed, and a large force is at work between Trenton and Philadelphia. From the latter city, southward, the track is completed to Newark, and will be speedily finished between Baltimore and Washington. Work is progressing upon the bridge across the Susquehanna, and there is a prospect that a double track road, without any change of cars, will soon be provided between Washington and New-York. The companies have ordered thirty new first-class cars for the line.

THE POTOMAC.

The Potomac flotilla has seen no rebel demonstrations on the river for a month past.

A METAMORPHOSIS.

The British blockade runner Neptune, rechristened the Clyde, is being fitted out at the Washington Navy-yard as a gunboat.

Cricket.

NEW-YORK CLUB VS. MASSACHUSETTS ELEVEN.

This annual match was commenced yesterday morning at Hoboken; and, as we anticipated, the Bostonians, fatigued as they were with the two previous days' cricketing under the intense heat, were entirely overmatched by the fresh team of the strongest players in the country outside the St. George's Club, which were pitted against these amateurs by the New-Yorkers. O'Brien's and Martin's bowling was much less effective than in the St. George's match, although Haigh's wicket-keeping had much improved, and Martin's useless left hand completed his retirement from the field at times, he having missed an easy chance of catching out Hammond when he had only scored five runs. Sadler also gave a catch, which was badly missed by another fielder. At sunset the score stood: New-York, 126 runs, of which Hammond scored 37, and Sadler 28; Boston stood 49 runs, of which Haigh scored 11.

The game will be resumed at 9½ o'clock this morning, and will no doubt terminate—under the above circumstances—in an easy victory for New-York.

Our reporter lost a pair of spectacles on the ground; any one having found such an article will oblige him by leaving them at the TIMES Office.

Death of Col. Francine.

CAMP SEVENTH REGIMENT NEW-JERSEY VOLS., NEAR BEVERLY FORD, Va., Aug. 6, 1863.

At the meeting of the officers of the Seventh regiment New-Jersey Volunteers, held at Camp, near Beverly Ford, Va., on the evening of Aug. 5, 1863, Maj. FREDERICK COOPER was called to the Chair, and the following resolutions adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God, in his all-wise providence, to remove from the service of the country our beloved Colonel, LOUIS R. FRANCINE; therefore,

Resolved, That we, his late associates and companions in arms, whilst we bow in submission to the will of the Most High, cannot but feel deeply the loss of one who had endeared himself to us by his many acts of kindness, and who, as a soldier, friend and gentleman, had won our highest esteem and regard.

Resolved, That, as a token of respect to the memory of our lamented Colonel, the officers of this regiment wear the usual badge of mourning for thirty days.

Resolved, That a copy of the foregoing be forwarded to the family of the deceased, assuring them of our condolence, and praying that the Lord will sustain them in this their hour of affliction.

Resolved, Also, that a copy be forwarded to the Philadelphia Inquirer, State Gazette, Trenton, N. J., Newark Mercury, Newark, N. J., New-York TIMES and Washington Chronicle, with the request that the same be published.

PERSONAL.—Capt. HENRY STONE, U. S. A., Assistant-Adjutant-General and Aid-de-Camp with Provost-Marshal FRY, is in the City, and is stopping at the Brevoort House. Capt. STONE has seen hard service in a Massachusetts regiment, and was detailed to Col. FRY'S Department as an evidence of the esteem and confidence felt for and in him by the "powers that be." His presence here at this time indicates activity in the movements of the Drafting Bureau, and the possible acceleration of the re-turning of the wheel of fate in this City.

HEALTH MATTERS.—At the last meeting of the Commissioners of the Board of Health, held at the Mayor's office, it was reported by the Health Officer that since the 2d inst. there had been no arrivals of infected vessels. In the Floating Hospital there were fifteen sick and fifteen convalescent. The Resident Physician reported the City in a cleanlier condition than for years it has been, and in commenting on the great increase of mortality during the past week, ascribed it to the intense heat, and also to the use of unripe fruit and stale vegetables; it is further ascribed to the over-crowding of tenement and other houses.

Murder by Negro Soldiers.

A FAMILY ASSASSINATED IN COLD BLOOD.

From the Chicago Post, Aug. 9.

A gentleman connected with this office, who arrived here from Memphis day before yesterday, gives information of one of the most horrible transactions that it has been our lot to record during this war. The boat landed at a place called Compromise, in Tennessee, near the dividing line between that State and Kentucky, where the particulars of the awful affair were learned from the neighbors. On Tuesday last, the 4th inst., eighteen negro soldiers, fully armed, having come from the camp on Island No. 10, went to the house of Mr. FRANK BECKHAM, on the river, immediately at Compromise Landing, and murdered him, aged 40 years; his old father, (Maj. BENJ. BECKHAM, aged 80,) and four children of Mr. F. BECKHAM: LAURA, aged 14; KATE, aged 10; CAROLINE, 7, and RICHARD, 2 years. They first caught Mr. F. BECKHAM and his aged father, tied them, marched them to the edge of the bank of the river, shot and stabbed them, and threw their bodies into the water. They then threw little DICK into the river, tied the two youngest girls together, and threw them in, then forced the oldest girl and beat her over the head with their muskets until she sank down. The bodies of old Maj. BECKHAM and the youngest child have been recovered. Many of the passengers went to the house and saw them. Fortunately two of the family of children were off at school, and the mother and one child, four years old, were at Owensboro, Kentucky. All the rest were murdered.

Twelve of the negroes were caught by our cavalry and are now confined at Island No. 10. Six are yet at large. The immediate motive for the deed was thought to be the fact that Mrs. BECKHAM took up the river with her a negro girl as nurse, whose mother had run off, and was at Island No. 10. The negroes had before endeavored to steel the girl away, but Mr. BECKHAM drove them off with arms.

CAIRO, Friday, Aug. 7.

It appears from a statement made by the Cairo News, of this morning, whose information came from Capt. PHILLIPS, of the United States Navy, that the killing of Mr. BECKHAM and family, near Compromise Landing, should not be wholly placed upon the shoulders of the colored men. The facts seem to be that, while the soldiers also had a hand in the bloody deed, two white men, one named GRAYSON, were sitting by, and urged on and prompted the negroes to their cowardly acts. GRAYSON has been captured, with twelve negroes and one white man. Five or six colored men are yet to be taken. It is to be hoped that all may be properly punished.

PRIVATE DISEASES CURED IN THE shortest possible time, by Dr. WARD & CO., No. 50 Lispenard-st., near Broadway, without the use of Mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. WARD, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and expense than any one can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks. Permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st., the only place. Call, send or write.

SURE CURE—BY DR. POWERS, SUCCESSfully consulted with Dr. WARD, No. 50 Lispenard-st. Conducted on the plan of the Hospital des Veneriens, Paris, where those afflicted with any form of private disease can receive prompt treatment, without risk or exposure, viz.: Syphilis, gonorrhœa, gleet, strictures, ulcers, tumors, cancers, secondary and constitutional syphilis, diseases of the kidneys, &c., &c. Thirty years of extensive practice, exclusively devoted to the treatment of those complaints enable us to effect cures in cases where others of less experience have failed. Dr. Powers' Essence of Life restores the vigor of youth in four weeks. This marvelous agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitution—physical disqualifications, impediments to marriage, thereby speedily cured. The men to consult, Drs. Ward and Powers, the champions and kings of venereal diseases, possessing the most certain, speedy and only effectual remedies in the world, guarantee a perfect cure, or no charge, in from one to three days. Established in 1840. N.B.—Those who have used their preventives are never without. Send for a circular. To Ladies.—Dr. Powers' Periodical Drops are a safe and certain remedy for monthly irregularities. The above remedies sent by mail. The afflicted should read their circular. Postage free, on receipt of a stamp. Cures warranted.

PRIVATE CONSULTATION.—DR. HUNTER has for thirty years confined his attention to diseases of a certain class, in which he has treated no less than fifty thousand cases without an instance of failure. His great remedy, HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures certain diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies: cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, but possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. That is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. Its value in this respect has become so well known, that scientific men in every department of medical knowledge begin to appreciate it, for hardly a week passes that he is not consulted by druggists, chemists and physicians in regard to some pitiful patient who has exhausted the whole field of the faculty, and still the disease will appear. Its popularity is so great that there is not a quack doctor in the City that has not attacked it, and when they find their lies are not so easily swallowed, they then pretend that they can make it. It is $1 a vial, and cannot be obtained genuine anywhere but at the old office, No. 3 Division-st. Book for 15 three-cent stamps, 100 pages, 100 colored illustrations. The best work out.

SCHENECTADY AND OATSKILL RAILROAD.—Notice is hereby given that books of subscription to the capital stock of the Schenectady and Catskill Railroad will be opened at the office of H. G. Stebbins & Sons, No. 46 Exchange-place, New-York, on TUESDAY, Aug. 13, and will remain open until SATURDAY, Aug. 22. The Company is fully organized under the general law of 1850. The capital, $1,000,000. Shares, $100 each; 10 per cent. to be paid at the time of subscribing. The construction of the road not to be commenced until the entire capital stock is subscribed. The amount of stock to be subscribed in the City of New-York is $600,000. In case of excess of subscription beyond the capital stock, the distribution will be pro rata among all the subscribers.

The road connects with the New-York Central Railroad at Schenectady, and runs thence to Catskill, forty miles, in a direct or air-line, with a remarkably easy grade. The saving in distance from Schenectady to Catskill, between this route and that via Albany, is twelve miles by rail and twenty by canal, and still greater saving in time and facility of transportation, by avoiding the inconvenience and detention of the overslaugh and twenty-nine locks. A line of swift and superior steamers will meet the cars at Catskill, making the passage from that place to New-York in five hours. Beside a large proportion of the travel and freight of the New-York Central, it will receive most of the travel and freight of the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad by its intersection ten miles below Schenectady. It will receive the accumulations of freight and passengers west from railroad lines extending to Lake Erie, north from Lake Champlain, Canada and Saratoga, and south from a cheap river travel of one hundred and ten miles, with ample depth of water, and wholly free from obstruction—all by the construction of only forty miles of track, on one of the most economical route known in the history of American railroads. Of the speedy construction of the road, and its large profits, no doubt need be entertained. Contractors of responsibility and experience offer to complete the double track, rolling stock, fences, &c., within the capital.

D. D. CAMPBELL, President.

THE METROPOLITAN POLICE.

THEIR SERVICES DURING THE RIOT WEEK.

THEIR HONORABLE RECORD.

NUMBER EIGHTEEN.

TWENTY-FIRST PRECINCT.

Capt. A. M. PALMER, No. 120 East Twenty-fifth-street. The Captain, with his command, was in the battle with the mob on the morning of Monday, at the Provost-Marshal's office, Forty-sixth-street and Third-avenue. All the forces engaged, " will be recollected, were repulsed. On the return to the Station, the Captain went home, and, in consequence of the stoppage of the Third-avenue cars, could not get back again until Tuesday morning, when he reported with his command to the Central Office. The force was with Capt. PETTY'S command on that morning at the disturbances in the vicinity of Sixteenth-street and Tenth-avenue, and the balance of the day and night on general duty at the Central Office. On Wednesday morning they were returned to their own Precinct, and in the afternoon the Captain, being sick, went home, and Sergeant BRACKETT took command. The force were kept in reserve in the Precinct, portions being constantly on valuable scouting and picket duty. All that night and all Thursday were gangs around, armed with clubs and other weapons, threatening dwellings, howling, hooting and terrifying citizens; the stores were all closed and terror reigned, Sergeant BRACKETT'S well arranged plans of operating in detail, boldly seconded by his men, prevented any concentration or more serious demonstration during this period. At 7 P. M., Thursday, Officer CHANDLER was brought to the Station badly beaten, and was thence conveyed to Bellevue Hospital. He had been attacked at Thirty-fourth-street and Second-avenue by a gang, against which he made manful fight, but uselessly. During the night the Sergeant and his force continued on the qui vive, and no outrages occurred. They were in squads, here, there, everywhere, and although in an infected district, by their promptness, activity and intelligent movements, frustrated attempts at outrage.

On Friday morning Sergt. BRACKETT in command, with Sergt. HASTINGS and thirty-five men repaired to Thirty-ninth-street and Second-avenue; the Seventh regiment was their escort; the block between Thirty-ninth and Fortieth streets, and the First and Second avenues, were surrounded by the military. This was a thoroughly riotous district, and the Police went to work entering every house and searching it for goods stolen during the riots, from the cellar to and on the roof. Not a room, a closet, a cubby-hole, or a "no-tween decks" was missed; every nook, corner and hole was investigated; sometimes the inmates, and generally with success; the explorations were continued in similar manner to Thirty-third-street, each block being surrounded by the military. At 4 P. M. the military were unfortunately withdrawn and the search had to cease. But an immense amount of property had been recovered, among it a full wagon load of fire arms, bayonets, pikes, &c., in all 173 pieces; furniture, groceries, dry goods, &c. &c., comprised the rest. Among contraband articles taken were five steel-headed clubs, villainous and murderous weapons which the owners had prepared for their work of murder and robbery. On Friday search by squads was renewed and another large amount recovered, among it some $400 worth of the property of the slaughtered Col. O'BRIEN, found at No. 186 East Thirty-fourth-street, where the thieves secreted it. This active work was kept up for several days, and with constant success. Sergeant VANDAM with fourteen men, and Roundsman MOORE with six, each in different portions of the Precinct, recovered thousands of dollars' worth. The catalogue of the goods retaken by the Twenty-first would make a large volume.

Although this force had but one encounter with the mob, their services in their Precinct were invaluable. They prevented many serious demonstrations, and in the duty of recovering goods were zealous and unflinching, notwithstanding its hazardous and unpleasant character. They have saved many thousands of dollars, by their efficient discharge of this duty to the Treasury.

Sergeant BRACKETT, on whom the command devolved, is entitled to great credit for the sagacity characterizing his action throughout, while his associate officers and the men have won a full share of the honors on the record.

TWENTY-SECOND PRECINCT,

Capt. J. C. SLOTT, Forty-seventh-street, between Eighth and Ninth-avenues. Monday morning, Sergeant CROW and twelve men reported to Capt. PORTER, at the Marshal's Office, Forty-sixth-street and Third-avenue. Here was the first serious demonstration of the mob, and the first attack upon the Police, in which the latter were defeated by overwhelming numbers; this force returned soon after noon to the Station. Capt. SLOTT, with Sergeants ALDIE, PORTER and MURPHY, and the command, reported at Headquarters in the evening, from whence they accompanied Inspector CARPENTER and force to the Park, participated in the charge upon the mob from the Tribune office, and contributed to the strewing of the ground with the bodies of the lawless and riotous. Thence were on the tour through the Fourth Ward, at the fight in Roosevelt-street, and the subsequent skirmishes. At midnight were at headquarters again, but soon after sent to the Twentieth Precinct Station to protect it and its hundreds of refugees. They remained here until Thursday, when ordered to their own Precinct. Meantime, however, they had participated with the Twentieth in the active, vigorous fight with the mob, which at midnight Tuesday were attempting to destroy the colored Church in Thirtieth-street, between Seventh and Eighth avenues. They went into this under "shot and shell," but every man with a will and determination that largely aided in the speedy, and to the officers, costly victory. It was this Precinct in the storming of the barricades in Ninth-avenue, from Thirty-seventh to Forty-third street. Sergeant ALDIS, of the Twenty-second, was in command here, and after a charge made under a shower of bricks and shot, only withdrew his men long enough to let the military discharge a volley, when the force pressed forward again, took and removed them. So nearly all the way up, on approaching each barricade, were they under fire from street or house-tops, but made a clean sweep of all the obstructions. Several of the rioters were killed in this engagement. The force returned to the Twentieth Station. In the afternoon of Wednesday, Capt. SLOTT made an expedition to Forty-second-street and Tenth-avenue, clearing the coast there; subsequently Sergeant ALDIS was sent with command to Twenty-seventh-street and Seventh-avenue, where rioters were rampant, did the work of dispersal thoroughly, and on returning when near the arsenal was ordered by Gen. SANDFORD to take his force and a company of military then awaiting him, to Forty-second-street and Tenth-avenue, where the mob had again gathered, and were threateuing to urn the residence of Mr. CAMPBELL. He at once wheeled, and with the added force of military, hurried up. The force was, on arrival, greeted with shoutst of defiance, and with shots and missiles from doors, windows and house-tops, as well as from the street. He halted, and tried a little moral suasion, begged of the rioters to desist and to retire; they gave him no heed, and the officer in command of the military made a similar appeal. The only responses, save from a few who got out of the way, were renewed yells and volleys. The military then wheeled into sections on the avenue, one facing up the other down, the Police in the centre, and opened fire. Men were shot down in the street, some picked off from the house-tops, and others from the windows, where they had been actively firing. In a few moments the mob was entirely dispersed, leaving their dead lying in the streets uncared for. This ended the "battle-field" operation of the Twenty-second, who were relieved from the Twentieth Precinct on Thursday, retiring to their own on ordinary duty. Capt. WALLING, of the Twentieth, speaks in eulogistic terms of the valuable services of this command while at his Precinct, and the history of their arduous and responsible duties, so well performed, more than justify him. Every call was promptly, cheerfully and bravely met, and more honor won by them for an organization which is now ladened with honors.

TWENTY-THIRD PRECINCT.

Capt. HENRY HUTCHINS, East Eighty-sixth-street, near Fifth-avenue. The force of this Precinct were, on Monday, left without orders, in consequence of the cutting of telegraph wires, until about 6 P. M., when a special messenger brought orders to report at the Central Office. Meantime, however, reached there in time to be with Inspector CARPENTER'S command on its visit to the mob in the Park and Printing-House-square, and to join in the compliments so liberally bestowed upon the heads of the fleeing rascals. The force were on duty with the Inspector until returned to headquarters at midnight, and soon after were ordered under Sergt. COPELAND to the recovery of the body of the negro hung in Clarkson-street. This duty was performed in a rain drenching every man to the skin, and as they were returning to headquarters, the command received the information that Mr. WAKEMAN'S house, on Eighty-seventh-street opposite their Station, had been sacked and fired, and that the Station-house had also been consumed, and every article belonging to the force stolen or burned. Doorman EBLING, who was left in charge, managed to save the telegraph instrument, but that was all. This entailed heavy loss upon officers and men.

Before they had breakfasted on Tuesday, this force were with Inspector CARPENTER on the expedition in Second-avenue. At Thirty-fifth-street an assault was made on the rear, and, simultaneously, with guns and missiles, from the tops and windows of a block of tenement houses on the avenue. Here the charge was ordered by Inspector CARPENTER upon the houses, and was where such hand-to-hand fighting ensued. A portion of the Twenty-third were among the assaulting party—the balance being busily engaged with the mob on the street. On this occasion a large number of the rioters were so punished as never to be able again to participate in similar scenes; their thought themselves fortunate when finding themselves cornered in the houses, and the orders were "no prisoners." In the afternoon a portion of the force under Sergeant HIGGS was ordered to Broadway, by Commissioner ACTON, to employ or press into service for the Commissioners 32 stages. The force secured 14, being all they could find running. During the night the men were repeatedly called on readiness for duty, but were not required. On Wednesday morning it was thought necessary for the force to return to Yorkville to their own Precinct, which they did, reaching it by steamboat at 1 P. M. On landing, arriving at Fourth-avenue and Eighty-sixth-street, they were greeted by the citizens enthusiastically. The mob had, for two days and nights, been rioting there, unrestrained; universal alarm prevailed, and neither lives or property were safe. Where the excesses would end, no one could tell, and this opportune arrival of those who would and could protect them caused the greater relief and a general joy. All was quiet in the Precinct after their arrival; active patrol and scouting duty were performed during the balance of the week. A portion of the force was at once engaged in making search for stolen property, and succeeded in recovering a large amount—among it most of Mr. WAKEMAN'S valuable library. A number of the rioters and thieves were also arrested, while the search was being prosecuted.

During the absence of the force the rioters had sacked and burned Mr. WAKEMAN'S residence, had sacked and burned Mr. GREY'S, and had sacked the dwelling of Provost-Marshal NUGENT; the Station-house had been burned, as had the large grocery store of Messrs. METTER & DAMAREST, which was pillaged of a very large amount of goods ere it was given to the flames. The rioters and thieves had no opposition offered them for the first forty-eight hours and much money had been obtained from citizens on whom they called and demanded certain amounts under threat of destruction of their persons or their property. All this the presence of the force promptly put an end to.

While acting from Headquarters, the Twenty-third were prompt, active, gallant, and their efficiency was felt in all the services in which they were engaged. In what repute they are held at home is evidenced by the cordial reception on their return, and by the immediate fleeing of the villains whom their absence had encouraged to acts of outrage and plunder.

THE ORDER OF ST. VINCENT DE PAUL.

GRAND PICNIC AT JONES WOOD.

A Gay and Happy Day to Aid a Noble Work.

The Society of St. Vincent de Paul, attached to the Catholic church of St. John the Evangelist, on the corner of Fiftieth-street and Madison-avenue, held its third annual picnic yesterday, in Jones' Wood. Before proceeding to detail the pleasant scenes of this graceful festival, it may not be amiss to remind our readers of the circumstances connected with from which the Society celebrating it in common with thousands of others throughout the Catholic world derives its name.

The celebrated founder of the Order or Mission of Priests that bears his name, VINCENT DE PAUL, was born, In 1576, in Southern France, and after completing his collegiate and ecclesiastical education at Toulouse, was, during a brief voyage on the Mediterranean, captured by Turkish rovers, and remained for a long time in slavery to them, as was the common fate of Christian captives in the East during that period. While thus degraded and suffering in position, he bore signal testimony to his own piety, learning, eloquence and constancy, as well as to the beauty of his creed, by converting his Mahometan master to Christianity. Having been liberated and restored to his native country, he became the Parish Priest of Clichy, where his devout bearing and unexampled benevolence attracted the attention of many persons of means around him. One of these, a pious and wealthy lady, aided him in establishing a congregation of missionary priests devoted to the religious instruction of the poor, and other noble acts of Christian charity. The chief seat of these missions was the religious house or priory of St. Lazarus, in the City of Paris, and from this fact the Order was long known as the Lazarites. They were bound by complete monastic vows for the purpose of supporting missions, and were all regular priests. Notwithstanding all the persecutions of the revolutionary period, the Order survived, and owing to the great services they had rendered the people of the rural districts, were restored to their original status and destination by royal ordinance, in 1616. Up to 1830, they were distinguished as the active adherents and missionaries of the old Catholic party, who restored to them the greater part of their earlier possessions. In Spain, the Order has greatly extended and flourished; in Austria, although but recently admitted, it has made wide progress; in Poland, its members are called the "Fathers of the Mission," and are not only very numerous, but highly influential. Their ancient monasteries are still maintained in that country, and they are everywhere found as tutors of youth, teachers in seminaries and religious guides and monitors. Their establishments have even gained a foothold in China and Japan, and in America both North and South, but particularly the former, they are making rapid headway. The founder, St. Vincent, died in 1660, and was canonized in 1737.

Such is a brief sketch of the Order of St. Vincent and its originator. The religious Societies of St. Vincent are attached here in New-York to the various Catholic parish churches of the place, and spring up as each new parish is formed, the later offshoots being required to serve during one year of probational activity before being admitted to connection with the central association. The latter meets once a month in general conference in the school-house of St. Patrick's Cathedral on Mulberry-street, and there each parish conference or society is represented by its President for the transaction of business relating to the good of the whole body.

The main professed object of these Societies is the relief of the poor of their respective parishes, without distinction of creed, and the extent of this relief is limited only by the amount of available funds. During the last year the General Society, which numbers about twelve hundred persons, has distributed some $45,000 to the poor. The Society of St. Vincent de Paul, of the Church of St. John the Evangelist, has been in existence about three years, and, consequently, about two years in communion with the parent stem. It has achieved a vast amount of good, aided by the indefatigable efforts of its Pastor, Rev. JAMES MCMAHON, whose devotion to the best interests of his people was, we may remark, conspicuous during the riot week. The Society is altogether charitable in its objects, politics being excluded, and every meeting opening and closing with prayer. Upon seeking to join it no one is questioned concerning either his religious or political faith, but there are requisites connected with its service that render it unavoidable for members either to be good Roman Catholics or to conform to the rites of their church.

THE FESTIVAL.

As may be premised, so popular an association has hosts of well wishers, and as early as 10 o'clock, yesterday, favored by the delightful weather, throngs of gaily dressed people began to enliven the beautiful groves and lawns of Jones Wood. SOMMERS, as usual, had done his best to render it inviting, and, lured by the delicious music of DODWORTH'S twenty-five best pieces, merry dancers soon filled all the platforms. The clergy were represented on the scene by Rev. JAMES MCMAHON, pastor of St. Johns; Rev. Mr. MCEVOY, his assistant; and Rev. Messrs. WOODS of St. Patricks, NELLIGAN and BROPHY.

Messrs. JOHN HOGAN, THEODORE GEEDY and WM. O'BRIEN, the President, Vice-President and Secretary of the Society, aided by an effective Committee, spared no exertion to enhance the pleasure of the occasion, which was honored by some five thousand persons, and netted a receipt to the fund of $850. In addition to this amount, the Society has now in its treasury about $250; and under its charge about 60 families, or 240 persons, whose comfort will be much improved during the approaching Winter by this liberal aid. They now receive from $1 to $1 25 per family every week, to assist them in their struggle against want.

The whole affair passed off most pleasantly and profitably for all concerned, and closed at 9 P. M,

CHECK FOR $10,000 FOUND.—Yesterday HENRY GENSLER, an errand boy of the NEW-YORK TIMES office, found a check on the United States Treasury for $10,000. The check, which was picked up in front of the Occidental Restaurant, on Fourteenth-street, was drawn in favor of Major C. L. KING, by Capt. ROBINSON, Assistant Quartermaster. The draft was at once given by the lad to Major KING. A reward of $5 was given to the honest messenger boy.—Washington Republican, Aug. 12.

OBITUARY.

—Thomas Addis Emmet, Esq., a much-respected member of the Bar in this City, died on Wednesday at his residence, Astoria, L. I., at the age of sixty-five. Mr. Emmet was a nephew of Robert Emmet, the Irish patriot and martyr to liberty, who made the name illustrious, and the son of Thos. Addis Emmet, who, thirty-two years since, was suddenly stricken down while engaged in his professional labors, and whose monument at St. Paul's Church is daily seen by thousands as they pass through Broadway. Mr. Emmet was a quiet, unassuming gentleman, pursuing the even tenor of his way through life, being careful only to transmit the legacy, priceless above political or social distinction, of a good name to his children. He was for a number of years a Master in Chancery, an office which he filled with ability. In early life he married a very estimable young lady, a member of one of our oldest, most respected and wealthy families. Mr. Emmet was a man of domestic habits, warmly attached to his family, and has been for a number of years a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church in which he was born. His funeral takes place at Astoria on Saturday.

—Benjamin M. Whitlock, Esq., formerly one of the prominent wholesale grocers of this City, died on Wednesday last at his residence in Westchester County, after a very brief illness. Mr. Whitlock, in consequence of the present troubles, lost overwhelmingly, because of the failure of his Southern customers to meet their engagements, and was compelled to relinquish his business, which had before been one of the most profitable in the City. He was a man of finest business capacity, and of noble, generous impulses. His hospitality was lavish, and he was noted especially for keeping one of the finest studs in the country, his stock and stables being the centre of admiration and interest. These and the remainder of his property he sacrificed when misfortune overtook him, in order honorably to meet his sudden embarrassments.

—Rev. Joseph M. McKee, of the Reformed Dutch Church, died at Newark, N. J., on the 11th inst. Mr. McKee was well known in this city, where, for a long period, he was employed as teacher in some of our best female schools. Six years ago, at the request of many prominent citizens, he went to Newark and opened a young ladies' school, the success of which was very marked. Probably no instructor ever received from his pupils higher personal regard.

PERSONAL.

The following is a list of Americans registered at GUN'S American Agency, No. 17 Charlotte-street, Bedford-square, London, England, for the two weeks ending Aug. 1, 1863:

—The widow of Brig.-Gen. Lander arrived in the City yesterday, from Port Royal, S. C., by the Arago. Mrs. Lander has spent the past seven months in the Hospitals at Beaufort and Hilton Head, where, aided by an excellent corps of nurses of her own organization, she has done a blessed work for the sick soldiers. Her services, and those of the self-sacrificing ladies under her direction, have been especially valuable since the bloody repulse of our forces at Fort Wagner; and it is gratifying to announce that under the kind attention they have received, our poor wounded fellows are progressing as favorably as can be expected in the torrid climate of the Sea Islands. We regret that Mrs. Lander's return North has been made imperative by the enfeebled state of her health, resulting from the arduous duties that she has so cheerfully performed.

— We understand, says the Wheeling Intelligencer, that Ex-Judge Thompson, who was banished from this State by the Federal Court, is constantly on the watch for his "oppressors," all of whom it is his intention to arrest whenever he can find them in the State of Ohio. For this purpose he has spies engaged, as in the case of Gov. Pierpoint, who was arrested by the Judge at the Bridgeport depot, one day last week, upon the charge of false imprisonment. The Governor having given the required bail, the Ex-Judge is now "laying for" Col. Darr, who had something to do with the Judge's detention in the Atheneum.

—Mr. Leonard Bennett, of Long Plain, near New-Bedford, Mass., hearing a noise in his henhouse the other night, started out to investigate, carrying a shot-gun with him. Seeing a moving figure, he leveled his piece, purposely aiming low, with the intention of shooting the thief in the legs, but the culprit chanced to be in a stooping posture and received the entire charge in his breast. He was killed instantly, and Mr. Bennet then found that he had shot James Walker, a man aged about 40 years.

—There is a report in circulation, predicated, it is claimed, on good authority, that Mr. Vallandigham has been urged by his political friends to withdraw from the Gubernatorial canvass. This move has been superinduced, it is said, by the recent successes of the Northern arms, putting at naught the oft-repeated assertions of the "Great Vanished," that the Government cannot put down the rebellion by force of arms.

—Gen. McClellan had a narrow escape at Sag Harbor the other day. James Talmadge, a nephew of Rev. S. L. Mershon, of Easthampton, was drowned while bathing in the surf, and Major-Gen. McClellan and several others, bathing at the same time, were in imminent peril from the heavy undertow.

— Gen. Hunter is at the Fillmore House, Newport, and Gen. Buell at the Ocean House. Gen. Sherman attended church last Sunday and a week ago Sunday. Last Sunday the excessive heat caused him to faint, but he recovered soon on reaching the open air.

—Col. C. C. Doolittle, Eighteenth Michigan Volunteers, was a few days since presented with a magnificent silver tea set by the subordinate officers of the regiment at Nashville, Tenn.

—Mr. HENRY GRATTON GUINNESS, who made an evangelizing tour to this country three years since, has become a Plymouth Brother, and has renounced the title "Reverend."

—Brig.-Gen. Butterfield passed through Boston on Tuesday, en route from the White Hills to New-York.

Our Artists.

WHERE THEY ARE AND WHAT THEY ARE DOING.

The whereabouts of our artists this Summer are thus described by the Independent of this week:

DURAND, the venerable EX-President of the National Academy, is spending his second Summer on the shores of Lake George, at work with his usual industry on studies of trees and rocks.

CHURCH is residing upon his farm on the Hudson, opposite Catskill. His picture of the Iceberg is now exhibiting in London, and has drawn hearty commendation from the London critics.

GIFFORD, having returned from his third term of service with the Seventh regiment, has been in the Clove at Catskill, but during the Summer will revisit the Mansfield Mountains, (already made famous by his pencil,) and also spend some time among the White Mountains.

BELLOWS is at Amherst, Mass. Engravings are in progress by GOUPIL & Co. from his series of pictures called "Life's Day."

PAGE is at Eagleswood, N. J., where he is permanently located. Besides several fine portraits, he has on a colossal scale commenced "Prometheus bound to a Rock."

CROPSEY has returned after seven years' residence in London. He brings his family, and expects to remain a year among picturesque scenes in our country, gathering new studies to satisfy his English friends. He is now in Passaic county, N. J.

BOUGHTON, having made a hit in the art circles of London, is now spending the summer vacation in Brittany.

HUBBARD is at Lake George, and will, in company with GIFFORD, visit the White Mountains.

The HILLS (father and son) have been at Portland, Me., and are now near Shelbourne, N. H.

HUNTINGTON is making a horseback tour among the hills of New-Hampshire.

E. JOHNSON has been in Maine, and also on Long Island, where he painted two studies—one a picturesque interior without figures; another with a figure of a black man reading the Bible in a chimney-corner.

LOUIS LANG is now at Newburgh, but will finish his season at his usual resort, West Point.

LEUTZE is on a visit to Dusseldorf, and will return in September or October, bringing his family with him, to make this country his permanent home.

GRAY is at Stockbridge, Mass.

E. WHITE is in New-Jersey, among the old Dutch interiors, which he paints so well.

E. BENSON ("Proteus") is at Newburyport.

BERWOOR and COLEMAN are at Genesee, the broad acres and splendid groves of trees of that famous valley affording fine subjects for their pencils.

VINCENT COLYER has again laid aside the brush, to act as almoner for the fund raised in behalf of the distressed colored people in this city.

DARIEN is at his home at Claymont, Del.

BAKER is at his country house on the shores of Connecticut, near Darien.

ENNEKING is traveling in Europe, but means to locate in London before his return.

GREENE has returned to the City, after an absence of two years, and is to be found at his old studio, No. 806 Broadway.

INNESS is residing at Medfield, Mass., but intends to remove to Eagleswood, N. J. The latest works from Mr. INNESS can be seen at SNEDECOR'S Gallery, on Broadway.

LAMBDIN is at Germantown, Penn., and has just finished a picture of the size of "Ask me no More," called "Spring"—ten young ladies gathering flowers in a garden.

JAMES M. HART has been on the Hudson, near Poughkeepsie, and is now on the shores of Cayuga Lake.

WM. HART is among the White Mountains.

W. T. RICHARDS, of Philadelphia, is among the Adirondacks, and we may expect from him in the coming exhibitions something other than the fastidious and beautiful leaf-work with which he has already made an impression upon critics.

WHITTREDGE and MCENTEE are among the Catskills.

KENSETT has been on Long Island Sound for a short time, but is now at his studio.

E. W. NICHOLS is at Northampton, Mass., having been up and down the Connecticut River, drawing lines in pleasant places.

BIERSTADT is yet among the buffaloes on the Western plains. We believe it is his intention to go to California by the overland route.

OSBORN is at Westerly, R. I., engaged upon designs for the new currency, and also upon a design for a large picture representing the movement of an army train.

Mrs. H. M. FIELD is at Saratoga.

SHATTUCK is among the elms and meadows of Great Barrington, Mass.

YEWELL is in Wisconsin.

WUST is now in Holland, near his birthplace. It is his intention to remain abroad several years.

HASELTINE is at Narragansett. He made studies on that coast last Summer, and there developed what will probably be his future specialty.

W. H. BEARD, with his bride, is making the tour of the White Mountains.

JAS. BEARD, his brother, an artist of long-established excellence in the West, has recently removed to New-York, and can be found temporarily in BIERSTADT'S studio in Tenth-street.

HENNESSY is yet at his studio, finishing numerous genre pictures; one, a boy sitting on the sands of the sea-shore, the picture being the result of a recent visit to Long Branch.

STILLMAN is residing at Rome, having been for some time the American Consul there.

CRANCH has returned to New-York. He has resided in Europe (most of the time in Paris) for nearly ten years. He will have a studio here next season.

CASILEAR is near Campton, N. H.

F. S. PERKINS is rusticating in the Far West, from which we would like to hear from him.

E. D. PALMER is at Aurora, Cayuga County, his usual Summer home. He is now engaged on a new bas-relief called "Hope," which is intended as a companion to "Faith."

ELLIOTT is at his country house, New-Durham, N.J.

CARPENTER is at his studio, having lately come from the grave of his brother, mortally wounded at Gettysburgh.

WILLIAM S. and SHEPPERD MOUNT are at their old headquarters, Stony Brook and Setauket, L. I.

POPE is at Catskill.

VEDDER is at Sharon Springs.

J. G. BROWN is at Shelbourne, N. H.

GREY has just returned from a visit near Boston, where he has been making some studies of cattle for a picture which he has in contemplation.

LAUNT THOMPSON has nearly completed his "Hamlet," a study made from EDWIN BOOTH, the actor.

MIGNOT is in London, where he has some pictures in the Royal Academy.

J. Q. A. WARD is in town, and has been engaged upon a statuette of Gen. MCCLELLAN.

Canada and the United States.

A LETTER FROM THOMAS D'ARCY M'GEE.

THOS. D'ARCY MCGEE writes a curious letter to the editors of the Montreal Gazette, in the course of of which he says:

"Is our condition in Canada really critical? Are our statesmen vigilant, and on their guard? On what are we to depend in case the avowed designs of the American Democracy against us should be prosecuted to actual hostility? How do we stand 'at home?' Is England satisfied or dissatisfied with our vigilance and preparedness? In other words, will England stand by us, should the worst come to the worst? These are questions to be asked and answered at Quebec, before the Parliament called for Thursday next should be allowed to adjourn. Six or seven or eight months of negligence or indifference to the first duty of the statesman—the security of the State, may jeopardize the connexion, impair our existence, and lay us prostrate at the feet of the Northern Americans, before 1864 is half past.

I am no alarmist, but neither can I shut my eyes to the signs of the times. At Rouse's Point—45 miles from this populous city, the heart of Canada, our neighbors have hurried to completion an immense new fortress—Fort Montgomery. The statesmen of Canada ought to go to Quebec, via Rouse's Point. They will see there a place of arms, destined to play no feeble part in the contemplated subjugation of their country. They will see, if they are permitted to enter, magazines capable of containing supplies for an army of 100,000 men, and barrack accommodation for a permanent garrison of 5,000. I speak upon no newspaper authority, upon no doubtful information, when I say, that the plan contemplated at Washington for the invasion of Canada is to march 100,000 men up to the District of Montreal—to cut the connection between Upper and Lower Canada'—to abstain religiously from intermeddling in our local affairs, but to force a separation of the Provinces, by the mere force of an army of occupation, interposing its military barrier to their intercourse. What would follow such separation, rest assured, has not escaped their calculations.

It is in view of these facts and others, which for important reasons I do not now state, that I ask the question which I trust every constituency in Canada will, through its representative, insist on having answered at Quebec immediately—'Will England stand by us?' To that question the Government of the day ought to be now in a position to give an authoritative, official answer. I hope they are in that position; if they are not, they must be forced into it by every possible constitutional pressure.

I can well understand English statesmen and economists, when they say that a nominal connexion is not worth the expenditure of blood and treasure, which a conflict with America must necessarily impose on England. To answer that argument, not by logic but by facts, not by argument but by action, we must make the nominal connexion real. If we can show that through British America lies the shortest and securest British highway to Japan, China, India and Australia—to Japan and China, shorter by 2,000 miles, to Australia by 900 miles, than any route now existing; if the opening of this British highway was once fairly begun—would not England then have something to stand by? If there were a Crown Colony at Red River, and a Crown Prince presiding over our united destinies in British America, would she not have something to stand by? Then our existence would be wrapped up in hers—our credit would come within one per cent. of hers—we would ride out this American storm by the same anchors of policy and power, which have held her fast, and never dragged from their firm grip of the planet, during all the European storms of eight hundred years!

I beseech the honorable members of both houses, now on their way to Quebec, not to dismiss these suggestions as idle or speculative, as unfounded in observation and information. I beseech them to consider within themselves, whether it is likely England will stand by us, if the connection is merely to be a nominal one? Will she equip an army and navy for Lord MONCK'S salary, or the pride of halving Lake Erie with the Republicans? For one, I do not believe it. Other and better defined arrangements must be entered into; the connection must be made real, not nominal, or the assistance of England will be found in the day of need to be rendered by our own default nominal, not real."
